You Have a Rich Uncle.
Mr. Coolidge Meditates.
Tired of Iraq.
Mole and Eagle.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SECRETARY MELLON, keeper of the public purse, announces a satisfactory financial year, and a surplus of $184,000,000 in Uncle Sam's pocket.

Mr. Mellon reduced by $746,000,000 the public debt which now totals sixteen billions, one hundred eighty-five millions. Not much for such a rich country. Business might be better if bonds were not paid off so rapidly.

But Mr. Mellon probably knows best.

IN THE CHICAGO Herald & Examiner, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other newspapers, Calvin Coolidge publishes daily a little article of advice, reflecting earnest meditation.

Henry Ward Beecher, Talmadge, Spurgeon, will be edified looking down and reading the short, well written articles, so sound, morally.

MR. COOLIDGE'S idea, apparently, is first to get us on a high, New England plane of thought, with our minds on our eternal home.

Later, undoubtedly, he will tell the jobless how they can get jobs, realizing that there is no hurry about future bliss, but much hurry about an immediate place on some payroll.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, you remember, all the world was excited about mandates. France took one mandate; England, absent-mindedly swallowing German colonies, took others, including Iraq. An effort was made to "wish" Turkey as a mandate on this long-suffering nation.

Thanks to Providence, we escaped that. To be Kemal's tutor would be a job.

NOW ENGLAND tells Iraq, in substance:

"Go in peace, join the League of Nations, run yourself."

"That blessed word, Mesopotamia," ancient name for Iraq, has cost the British many millions of pounds.

All that Britain wants now is to keep, without expense, the right to "British imperial communications and air routes," through the territory of the Tigris and the Euphrates.

AT ELEVEN FORTY A. M. yesterday, in Chicago, the Hunter brothers flew through their five hundredth continuous hour, having taken fuel from another plane some two hundred times.

They were undecided yesterday about staying up until the beginning of next week. One of the two Hunter brothers is a little tired.

He might well be, after staying in the air for 25 days and nights continuously.

SOME SAY it is a contest "between man and machine." It is not.

The machine will be on the junk pile, and the Hunter brothers well and hard at work many years from now.

The remarkable thing is that those two brothers, who used to work in a coal mine, now fly for 25 days through the clouds.

The mole stays under the ground. The eagle stays in the air. Man is both mole and eagle.

BABE RUTH "slammed out" his thirty-first home run yesterday and is getting on toward forty years of age. That will interest millions.

Goethe "slammed out" the second part of "Faust" when he was 72. That interests few.

Legs and arms rule now. Brains will control men's interest in the future, say, 100,000 years hence.

FREDERICK R. COUDERT, distinguished lawyer, raises an interesting point concerning Prohibition, and the statement that the law makes "the mere possession of liquor unlawful."

The courts, according to Mr. Coudert, have decided that it is legal to PURCHASE whisky. Therefore, it must be legal to HAVE it, since it is legal to purchase it, and, therefore, his eminently respectable client who carried whisky on the hip, and mixed highballs in a restaurant, should not have been arrested.

WALL STREET goes along, in a dull way, like one recovering from knockout drops, or a meeting with a holdup man. The Fourth of July will bring three days rest, and perhaps more vigor.

Money was cheap, two and a half per cent. Copper was too cheap, 11 and a half cents at some small smelters.

Farmers that have seen wheat drop below ninety cents a bushel, are disappointed in Uncle Sam's efforts to corner the market and conquer old "supply and demand."

Mary Hall, Actress, Becomes Bride of 'Mr. Zero'

PITTSBURGH FAVORITE MARRIES 4TH TIME

Ceremony at Maine Resort Climaxes 9-Yr. Friendship With N. Y. Social Worker

International News Service.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., July 3.—"Mr. Zero" and Mary Hall were married here today.

Little St. Margaret's-by-the-Sea Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the nuptials of Urbain J. Ledoux, champion of the downtrodden and jobless, and Miss Mary White, actress, known to Pittsburgh theatergoers as Mary Hall, for many years leading woman of the old Harry Davis stock company.

The ceremony performed by the Rev. James J. Mullen, climaxed a nine-year friendship, during which Ledoux, known as "Mr. Zero," and Miss Hall engaged jointly in welfare work in New York.

JOINTLY IN WELFARE WORK

Miss Hall is the daughter of Judge Henry P. White, former mayor of Kansas City, Mo., and the grandaughter of the late Gov. Tryon, of North Carolina. She had been married three times previously, to Smith B. Hall, editor, of Cincinnati and St. Paul; to William Rogers Antisdell and to Dr. Charles T. Pierce, of Cincinnati.

In the last six years, Miss Hall has played opposite Walter Hampden, E. H. Sothern and Henry Miller and in John Craig productions. Ledoux, a widower, of late has been conducting "The Tub" on St. Mark's place, New York, a rendezvous for the jobless. According to friends, a new "Tub"

Smith Spurns Fete, Tammany Rift Seen

NEW YORK, July 3.—(INS.)—A break between former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Tammany was forecast in some quarters today, when it was learned the former executive will not attend the annual Independence Day celebration of Tammany.

He also will not be present tomorrow when a memorial flagpole erected in honor of the late Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, is dedicated.

Senate Yields as President Scores Its Rates; Leaders Seek Adjournment Today

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, July 3. — (AP.)—The House today adopted the conference report on the veterans' pensions bill and only Senate approval is needed for final congressional action.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—With Senate conferees acceding to the demands of House leaders on the main controversial issues in the new World War veterans pension bill, agreement was reached on the measure today in less than two hours.

Leaders predicted the compromise legislation would be enacted before nightfall and the way thus paved for early adjournment.

Senate conferees gave in to the House demands for a slash in the $10 to $60 compensation rates inserted by the Senate two days ago, replacing the House's $12 to $40 scale. The House rates were retained at President Hoover's expressed wish.

SET LIMIT ON PENSIONS

The conference also agreed to limit pensions to veterans who paid no income taxes last year. This was the "pauper" provision suggested by the President, which the Senate had eliminated.

The Senate's provision for pensions to veterans disabled during the war by their own misconduct also was eliminated.

The conference was held after Senate Republican Leader Watson, of Indiana, and others had conferred with President Hoover.

Watson read a letter from the President, in which the executive denounced the bill, as adopted by the Senate.

CHANGES ARE ASSAILED

The President's letter read in part:

"These amendments again reestablish injustices and discriminations between veterans, impose unwarranted burdens on the taxpayer and perpetuate

HUNTER BOYS AROUSED BY STORY

'Correct Report Kenneth Was Weakening or We Will Land,' Says John in Note

CHICAGO, Ill., July 3.—(AP.) — John and Kenneth Hunter, co-pilots of the City of Chicago, which started today on the five hundred and twenty-fifth hour aloft at 1:40 p. m., Pittsburgh time, have threatened to bring down the plane which has exceeded the previous non-stop record by more than 103 hours, unless reports announcing Kenneth's desire to quit were corrected.

John Hunter dropped a note today expressing keen disappointment and dissatisfaction because of the partial publication of confidential messages between the brothers.

Yesterday the contents of a note to Walter and Albert Hunter, pilots of the refueling plane, were not made public, but one of the brothers was quoted as saying that Kenneth, the youngest brother, was "getting tired and wanted to land" at 520 hours.

Today's message, signed by John, follows:

"Walt—Al—Read this to yourselves:

"Say, who put that slush in the paper about Beans getting worried and nervous? Whoever done it had dam little to do after him crawling around on this ship night and day trying to bring the record to Chicago. Then somebody put that line of slush in the paper. Can't I write a thing to you guys without it getting in paper?

HARD TO AWAKEN

"I only told you that he was hard to wake up and so am I. This caused plenty of hell between me and him. He came near jumping out in 'chute as it wouldn't take a lot to make me do the same. Now, I want this corrected or this ship may land quick.

"We want this stuff stopped, and put in right stuff."

Buy and Pay, Coolidge Says, to Aid Jobless

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Faith without works is vain. Although many millions of people are enjoying record wages, there are others who are unemployed, some of whom can live on their savings, while the rest will have to be supported directly or indirectly by those who work.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

People are out of work because the things they could produce are not being bought. With all our wealth, it is difficult to suppose that our consuming power has greatly diminished. It is not being exercised. It will help somewhat to increase public and private construction. But the principal consuming power in this country is in the people who have work. Unless they buy of the other fellow he cannot buy of them.

If those who are working and have the means would pay all their retail merchandise bills and in addition purchase what they need and can afford, a healthy commerce would quickly be created. Our nation has plenty of resources to support all its people comfortably through a mutual exchange of products if everyone will do his part. Those who have employment now run the risk of losing it by refraining from buying and paying within their means. No one who has money now can afford to defer settling his accounts.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

This is the third of a series of daily articles Mr. Coolidge is writing exclusively for The Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh.

SUBURBS ASK FREER SUNDAY

Results to date of the poll of Sharpsburg, Springdale and West Homestead will be published Saturday.

Opposition to the strict Pennsylvania Sunday is expressed by each of 20 small subdivisions of Allegheny County casting representative votes in the Blue Law poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph.

The rural communities in the group exhibit a stronger objection to the Blue Law than the suburban districts. Ten townships give an aggregate ratio of five votes for repeal to one vote for enforcement of the law and 10 boroughs give a ratio of 3.5 to 1. The groups are divided:

	Townships	Boroughs
Enforcement	89	98
Modification	69	40
Repeal	449	338

Returns to date from the 10 townships total 607, or 33 per cent of the number of voters, 1,854.

JONES TO SEEK NEW LAURELS

NEW YORK, July 3.—(INS.)—Feted like a conquering hero of old, Bobby Jones was to leave today for Minneapolis to play in the national open championships.

Mayor Walker, of New York, who honored the Atlanta star after his arrival in ceremonies at City Hall, again last night paid tribute to Jones at a dinner. Before a large delegation of Atlanta residents and prominent New Yorkers, the mayor addressed the champion as America's greatest amateur sportsman and praised his achievements on and off the fairways.

The champion presented the mayor with a cigaret case inscribed "From Bobby Jones and Citizens of Atlanta."

After the dinner, the ovation given Jones was continued at the Central Park Casino, where Maj. John Cohen, of Atlanta, was host at a supper.

Jones denied that he intended to retire from golf after this year but said that business probably would make it impossible for him to go abroad next year.

New Yorkers Flee Stampeding Horses

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP.)—Stampeded by the backfiring of an automobile, 38 artillery horses galloped wildly through Bronx streets today, sending children and adults fleeing for shelter. They were rounded up by soldiers and police.

Hoover's Dry Quiz 'Camouflage,' Glass Says

WASHINGTON, July 3. — (INS.)—President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission was created to camouflage the administration's position on prohibition, Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, charged in the Senate today.

He demanded that the commission really investigate prohibition conditions and was joined in this by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, who said the commission had made a very disappointing record. Glass declared:

"The commission hasn't divorced prohibition from politics, but it has divorced itself from any inquiry into prohibition."

GIRL HIKER, 15, DISAPPEARS

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 3.—Missing from her home for 24 hours, after she had gone on a swimming and hiking party with a party of girls from Franklin Y. W. C. A., trace of Frances Heizel, 15, blonde daughter of J. C. Heizel, Rocky Grove, was sought by Western Pennsylvania police today.

Local parties organized a search near Sugar Creek, six miles from here. Her parents fear she has met with foul play, possibly accepting a ride from a stranger after leaving the hiking party. She was wearing a white duck sailor suit with brown sweater.

COSTE BELIEVED FLYING TO U. S.

LE BOURGET, France, July 3. —(AP.)—Seven hours after his take-off on a flight officially described as a 15-hour test of the Question Mark, Capt. Dieudonne Coste presumably was still aloft, with his whereabouts an ever-deepening mystery.

Many are asking themselves if the gallant flier and his mechanic, Maurice Bellonte, have not decided, after reaching the French coast, to continue on to America, in the hope of arriving on Independence Day.

Coste has said his fondest wish is to alight on American soil July 4.

3 Years to Sunday School Gardner's First Sentence

After conducting prosecutions in Criminal Court for eight years as district attorney, Judge Samuel H. Gardner today heard his first criminal case as a judge. Gardner has been assigned to sit in Criminal Court one day a week during the summer.

Judge Gardner's decision today was that Herman Marks, 16, of Bull Run road, Mifflin Township, for the next three years must attend Sunday school regularly, not stay out late nights and report regularly at monthly intervals to the probation officer and to the Rev. H. L. Crawford, Duquesne. The first time Herman breaks this parole he will be sent to Morganza.

The boy was accused of breaking into the caddie house of the Duquesne Golf Association and taking equipment to the value of $200.

PITTSBURGHERS TO MAKE 'FOURTH' GALA DAY TOMORROW

AIR STUNTS PRINCIPAL FEATURE

All Parts of County to Join In Patriotic Exercises; Fireworks at Night

Patriotic exercises will vie with mock aerial bombardment and sports events throughout the Pittsburgh district tomorrow in observance of Independence Day.

Ideal weather for the whole day was predicted by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman today.

Skies will be clear with the highest temperature around 80, he said.

Thousands are expected to attend Bettis Field and the Pittsburgh-Butler Airport for mock aerial attacks on miniature villages built on both flying fields. An attacking squadron of heavy planes will battle a unit of small fighters at the Pittsburgh-Butler Airport. Stunt flying will be included on the Bettis program with a fireworks display scheduled at night.

Band concerts and fire works will feature the program at each of the two county parks. Director Paul S. Ritz, announced today. In South Park the concert and fireworks will be held at Oak Hill and in North Park at Rose Grove. The concerts will begin at 7 o'clock and continue until 9:30 followed by the fireworks.

STUNTS IN AIR

An air program has been arranged at the Monessen airport, featuring a pickup of airmail with many aerial stunts performed by seven planes. Monessen's celebration opens with a parade at 9:30 a. m., followed an address at Page Park by Postmaster Jefferson P. Hershey, of McKeesport. Athletic events and a tug-of-war between Monessen, Charleroi and Donora police will feature the afternoon program.

Avalon will be the mecca for North Boroughs residents. A $40,000 swimming pool will be dedicated on a program that includes athletic events in the afternoon and entertainment and fireworks display at night. Addresses will be given by Burgess Grant Ritchey, Charles Newell, president of council, and Wesley Kelly.

Edgewood's celebration will include an athletic program with two ball games. A fireworks display will be given in the evening.

FIREWORKS AT CRAFTON

A program of fireworks and athletics will be staged jointly by Ingram and Crafton on the Crafton athletic field. Dormont will stage its annual program at Dormont Park. Brookline's all-day program begins at 9 a. m. and includes a parade, motion pictures, vaudeville and athletics.

Mt. Washington district will join in a community program at Olympia Park. Patriotic addresses and a parade of school children will begin at 2:30 p. m., with sports arranged for the children.

DANCE AT BRENTWOOD

A dance will be staged by the Brentwood firemen at night. Brackenridge borough and Tarentum are joining in a joint program under the American Legion. Two baseball games are among features arranged by the Capt. Orin M. Clarke Post No. 305, American Legion, in a community celebration at Turner Field, Laketon road, Wilkinsburg.

Pittsburgh Pirates will play a morning and afternoon game against the Chicago Cubs. The Bridgeville Speedway will stage a 100-mile point championship race in the afternoon, while greyhound races will be staged in the evening. New Kensington also will stage dog races at night. Independent baseball games will be played throughout the district.

Morganza will hold its annual celebration with athletic events, drills and band concert. Woods Run will stage an all-day program opening with a parade of school children in the morning, athletic programs in the afternoon and a street dance at the Woods Run School yard in the evening.

Former Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph P. Smith and Paul Ford Jones will be the principal speakers tomorrow at the Soho Community Association's fifth annual Independence Day celebration on Soho Playgrounds, Reed and Emmett streets, according to D. B. Roberts, chairman of the affair.

BAND CONCERT

The program between 2 and 5 p. m. will include patriotic addresses, athletic events and a concert by Heath's Community Band. An open air dance will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m. on the roadway of Reed street between Soho street and Center avenue.

The fourth annual picnic of the Brashear Settlement will be held Friday at the Brashear-Trees camp on the Harmony route. Picnickers will meet at the pumping station on Mission street. James Mills has charge of the picnic committee, and is assisted by Walter Kitty, Bill Dorfner, Mrs. R. Murphy and Mrs. Dorfner.

The Eighteenth Ward Board of Trade will hold a Fourth of July celebration at McKinley Park, South Hills. The afternoon will be featured by a ball game and sports. George J. Kambach, member of City Council, will speak. More than 15,000 are expected to attend, according to Edwin J. Mary, chairman of the committee.

Widow Wills $8,000 Estate to Children

The will of Mrs. Christina Loser, a widow, of the West End, filed for probate today, leaves an $8,000 estate to her son, George W. Loser, and a daughter, Mrs. Wilhelmina McMillan. George L. McMillan is named executor.

WALSH ORDERS SANE FOURTH

Capt. Wilson G. Price, superintendent of the state highway patrol, and James Lyall Stuart, secretary of highways, an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg says.

Walsh's order calls attention to the fact that a city ordinance prohibits the use of fireworks, firecrackers, rockets, fire balloons, etc., except when done under a permit from the fire bureau. Violation of the ordinance is punishable by fine of from $10 to $100 or by jail sentence up to 10 days. Parents of children less than 16 will be brought before Morals Court the day following the offense.

Philip Naunoff, 16, of 5506 Baywood street, was fined $5 by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones at a hearing in Moral Court today on a charge of violating a city ordinance prohibiting the shooting of fireworks.

Naunoff was arrested yesterday after hotel guests protested to police against the noise of a toy gun, he was firing.

At the hearing Inspectdr of Police Albert Beebe declared that some merchants are taking advantage of the ordinance permitting the sale of fireworks by ordering employes to give demonstrations before crowds. Naunoff admitted that he had been told to fire the gun by his employers.

Charles Tschauman, 22, of 1543 East street, was arrested last night at East and Tripoli streets by Officer Charles Keefer for exploding fireworks, was fined $5 in North Side Police Court today.

BLUE LAW FOES PLEDGE HELP TO COUNCIL

Modification Head Offers Co-operation in Fight for More Liberal Sundays

Wilmer M. Jacoby, member of the executive committee of the Association for Modification of the Blue Laws, today pledged co-operation of the association to City Council in the fight for a more liberal observance of Sunday in Pittsburgh.

Jacoby, in a communication to President of City Council John S. Herron, offered to place at the disposal of council all the data accumulated by the association over a period of years in the movement to modify the laws.

PLEDGES CO-OPERATION

The letter to Herron said:

"The association is very much interested and pleased with the activity of Pittsburgh's city council and will cooperate in every possible manner to help bring about a more liberal observance of Sunday in this community.

"The association intends to keep closely in touch with this movement and will either support a bill in the next legislature coming from a substantial source, or introduce our own measure and try to have it passed."

OFFICERS OF BODY

Officers of the association are A. W. Wyckoff, president; Mrs. George P. Bassett, Jr., vice president; Wilson S. McClintock, vice president; William B. Rodgers, vice president, and Frank I. Livingston, secretary.

Members of the executive committee are L. H. Burnett, William G. Costin, J. W. Cree, Jr., Miss H. Marie Dermitt, Joseph Dilworth, George R. Dorman, J. H. Hillman, Jr., A. L. Humphrey, Mr. Jacoby, T. WORKMEN HOISTING FRANK VITTOR'S STATUE INTO PLACE

The 1,400-pound bronze of Frank Vittor's statue of George Washington as a young man as it was placed on its base on Scott High school grounds, North Braddock. The unveiling is Wednesday.

Man, 80, Accompanies Father Cox Abroad

A party of 85 pilgrims, headed by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's, left today for a pilgrimage to Lourdes, Rome and Oberammergau. Among those included in the party was Louis Moore, 80, the oldest pilgrim ever to accompany Father Cox on his numerous tours. Moore intends to fly over the English Channel. This is the fifth annual pilgrimage that Father Cox has headed. The party will sail tonight on the Homeric from New York.

will be opened, operated jointly by "Mr. Zero" and his bride. Ten years ago, "Mr. Zero" auctioned unemployed "slaves" on Boston Common.

LEADING WOMAN HERE

Mary Hall was leading woman of the Harry Davis Stock Company in the old Duquesne and Grand theaters for several seasons. Later she appeared with a stock company in the Pitt, then known as the Penn, under the management of William Moore Patch.

Her most recent Pittsburgh appearance was as a member of the Walter Hampden Company. She played Lady Macbeth to the Macbeth of Mr. Hampden. In Hampden's "Cyrano De Bergerac," she played the part of Lise and also that of a nun.

As a member of the Davis Company, she achieved great local popularity and always was warmly welcomed when she came back with touring companies.

ERECT SHAFT AT BRADDOCK

The bronze statue of George Washington, presented by the citizens of Braddock and North Braddock, was hoisted yesterday upon its granite base on the grounds of Scott High School, Library street, North Braddock.

Official unveiling ceremonies will be held July 9, in connection with the district celebration of the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battle of Braddock's Field, in which Col. Washington, then aide-de-camp to Gen. Edouard Braddock, first distinguished himself as a leader in the French and Indian War.

The statue faces out over the territory where Washington watched the tide of battle as it turned with disastrous results to the valiant British leader. Throughout the battle Washington, who had three horses shot from under him, played a leading part in stemming the hurried retreat of the scattered Britishers.

The statue by Frank Vittor was hoisted into place by the construction department of the eastern division of a Bell Telephone Company crew in charge of H. L. Prewett.

Woman in 'Attic' Case Granted Stay

LOS ANGELES, July 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, who was to be tried next week for the murder of her husband, Fred, won a continuance until August 4. Mrs. Oesterreich wishes to go to Milwaukee, her former home, to make investigations and obtain witnesses.

Mrs. Oesterreich was indicted with Otto Sanhuber, her "attic lover," who was convicted of manslaughter.

PORTER AIDE PUSHED FOR CONGRESS

Erk, Secretary, Reported Backed by Army Veteran Organizations in County

Rumored support from World War veterans, coupled with that of political and business elements, appears to have put Edmund F. Erk, secretary for 20 years to the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter, in the lead of potential candidates for the vacancy created by Porter's death last week.

Porter received the Republican nomination for what would have been his tenth term, and his successor to run for election in November will be chosen by the county committemen and women of the Thirty-second Congressional district, which includes the seven Pittsburgh wards on the North Side and all boroughs and townships north of the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers.

AWAIT ARMSTRONG

The committee members of the district, under party rules, will meet "as soon as practical" at the call of County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, who is due to return from a honeymoon next Monday.

Current reports indicate that leaders in the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association have rallied behind Erk in appreciation of his assistance in the six-years' campaign to pass the Porter bill authorizing the retirement of Lloyd M. Brett as brigadier general.

ERK HAS SUPPORT

Political friends of Erk said they have canvassed the chairmen and other leaders of the seven North Side wards and reported that a large majority is inclined toward Erk. Other surveys indicate Erk has a substantial following also in boroughs and townships.

The Congressional District includes large sections with independent constituents whose leaders are advocating former Judge Frank I. Gollmar, of West View, for the Porter vacancy.

Gollmar, who managed the Allegheny Pinchot-for-Governor campaign, while nominally an independent Republican, has received at times generous support from organization leaders. Besides having been a judge of Common Pleas Court, Gollmar has been an assistant county solicitor and a special assistant city solicitor.

entirely wrong principles in such legislation.

"Under these amendments, the average allowance to veterans whose disabilities were incurred in civil life subsequent to the war will work out very close to the same average payment as that given to veterans who actually suffered from battle and in the trenches.

"From removal of the indication of necessity, a wealthy disabled by an automobile accident next week, may draw a life allowance from the United States treasury.

HEAVY COST CERTAIN

"General Hines estimates the cost the first year of this bill, as passed by the Senate, will be $70,000,000, rising to about $75,000,000 in five years and thereafter. This represents an increase on the House bill by about 250 per cent. These are sums wholly uncalled for and probably imply an increase in taxes.

"Except for some minor technical points, the House bill met the entire approval of the Representatives of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. They did not ask for any more. . . . opposed the major Senate amendments."

WORK HARD FOR WINDUP

Administration leaders in Congress were bending all their efforts toward adjournment tonight, but there were indications it might require miraculous powers to send Congress home before the Fourth. Five great legislative controversies were flaring at both ends of the Capitol and all must be compromised if the first regular session of the Hoover Congress is to adjourn tonight.

In order of their importance, these problems are:

1—Enactment of a World War pension bill.

2—Passage of the Second Deficiency Appropriation bill, after a compromise of the contest over giving $250,000 or merely $50,000 to the Wickersham Commission.

MUSCLE SHOALS FIGURES

3—Settlement of the controversy over the demand of Southern Senators that Congress direct the Secretary of War to lease power from Muscle Shoals to nearby municipalities.

4—Passage of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, after a compromise of the dispute between the House and Senate over the amount of Federal contributions to the city's operating expenses.

5—Compromise of the dispute between the House and Senate over the Wagner Unemployment bill, to establish a long range government program for construction work during unemployment periods.

7 FINED IN DRIVE ON SOUTH SIDE LOTTERIES

Woman Held in Number Raid; Police Keep Up Crusade, Seizing More Suspects

Seven of nine men arrested yesterday in a drive on lotteries were fined $100 each by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court today. The two others were discharged.

Several who had named Thomas J. (Goose) Goslin, of 1615 Brownsville road, as the head racketeer, police said, changed their stories today. One of them testified Harry Wilson got the money.

Magistrate Sweeney said:

"I know you fellows don't turn in to Harry Wilson. I know where he works."

NEIGHBORS COMPLAINED

Police testified they raided an alleged lottery headquarters at 12 South Twenty-seventh street on complaint of neighbors. Four were arrested and several others escaped.

Those fined were Goslin, D. T. Blain, 1204 Federal street; Ernest Weiland, 102 South Twenty-first street; Jack Goldstein, 268 Lombard street; George Bune, 2710 Sarah street; William Cleveland, Negro, 2518 Carson street, and Harry Morgan, 24 Vine street.

WOMAN ARRESTED

While plainclothesmen were in the confectionery store of Mrs. Jewel Elgner, 40, of 2812 Carson street, Max Slutsky, 22, of 5435 Stanton avenue, entered. He was asked what he wanted, and he replied:

"I'm here to pick up the numbers for the day."

Police arrested him and Mrs. Elgner.

At the Washington Restaurant, 2908 Carson street, two men writing numbers at tables for customers were arrested. They were Nick Mackris, 21, waiter, of 512 Pressley street, and George Raynovich, 17, of 2832 Carson street.

RAID IN HOMESTEAD

Acting upon a complaint from a Homestead resident, county detectives under Lawrence Kline today raided two places in Homestead, confiscated an adding machine and a number of clearing house lottery books and arrested four men.

The places raided were at 514 Dixon street, where John Morris and Rufus Jackson, Negroes, were arrested, and at 521 Dixon street, where Harrison Rucker and Uray Belley, also Negroes, were taken into custody. They were charged before Alderman J. P. Kaercher, of the South Side, with maintaining gambling devices.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES GOING UP

Financial Houses Report 10 Per Cent Jump in Quarter; Total Up to $765,338,392

Pittsburgh people have $71,008,979 more on deposit in 12 leading banks of the city than they had three months ago. This represents a gain of 10.3 per cent.

The gain in the city's wealth was shown by a compilation of the deposits of the banks and trust companies which up to last night had made reports of their condition on June 30 in response to state and national bank calls issued yesterday.

DEPOSITS GAIN

The 12 banks had total deposits of $765,338,392. This compared with $694,329,413 reported by the same banks at the last call. Previous statements were made by the national banks on March 27 and by the state banks and trust companies on March 17.

Department stores here so far this year have shown an average business increase of 3 per cent over the first six months of 1929, a downtown store leader announced today.

At the same time it was disclosed that as many sales people as were employed in July of last year by the institutions are now on the payrolls. In some cases an increase is shown.

WORK FOR 'EXTRAS'

Despite the seasonal aspect of department store business, some institutions are using from 75 to 200 "extras" on "sale" days.

Kaufmann's, according to I. D. Wolf, store secretary, now gives work to 35 more clerks than for the same period of 1929. An aggregate of 200 "extras" is used daily, he said. In all, 3,000 persons are employed by this institution.

Gimbel's, it was said, used 167 extras last Monday in addition to the regular staff, and 94 yesterday.

'HEALTHY GROWTH'

More than 1,200 persons have regular employment at Rosenbaum's, 2,600 at Joseph Horne's, 1,500 at Frank & Seder's and proportionate numbers at McCreery's, Harris department store, Boggs & Buhl and others.

A spokesman for Frank & Seder store said:

"In lieu of so-called business depression throughout the United States in many lines of endeavor, Pittsburgh should feel happy that its department store business shows such a healthy growth. I think the average business increase in most stores is at least 3 per cent over the same six months' period of 1929."

HOOVER TO ASK HUSTON TO QUIT

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(INS)—President Hoover has decided to intervene personally in the tangled situation confronting the Republican National Committee and ask Claudius H. Huston to resign as chairman.

Possibly today, almost certainly before Monday, the executive will get in touch with Huston to request he step aside. The White House already has made inquiries as to his whereabouts, learning he was not in the city yesterday.

The chairman himself brought matters to a head by his action in calling the meeting of the officers of the committee and the chairmen of the congressional and senatorial campaign committees for Monday, July 7.

LAW, OUTLAWS HUNT GANGSTER

CHICAGO, July 3.—(AP)—The law and the outlaw both hunted Jack Zuta, the gangster, today.

If the law found him first, it meant to put some pointed question to him concerning Jake Lingle's murder. If the outlaws found him first, then it was unlikely that Zuta ever would be able to answer questions for anybody.

Jack McGurn, dapper hoodlum and reputed Capone gunman, was sentenced to county jail for one year and fined $300 for carrying concealed weapons today. This is the maximum sentence.

A requisition for the return of Frank Foster, alias Frank Foreman, gangster, from Los Angeles, to face an indictment charging the murder of Lingle, was signed by Lieut. Gov. Sterling at Springfield today.

The Times today said its reporters had obtained information that George Hurley, a Moran gangster, had been identified by a witness of the slaying as the man who shot Lingle.

WALES 'ASSAULT' ONLY GREETING

SUNDERLAND, Eng., July 3.—When the Prince of Wales arrived here today to fill several engagements, a man jumped on the running board of the royal car as it proceeded through the streets. A score of men in the crowd pulled the offender off before he could make his intention clear. He was handed over to the police for questioning.

The man, revealing he was Charles E. Smith, an old shipmate of the prince, said:

"I just wanted to shake hands."

Smith was released while the prince went on, scarcely noticing the incident.

3 HURT IN AUTO STRIKE FIGHT

FLINT, Mich., July 3.—(INS)—Three persons were injured, none seriously, when police and state troopers, swinging riot clubs freely, broke up a demonstration of 1,800 strikers in front of the Fisher Body Company plant here today.

About 3,500 workers have walked out.

Company officials issued a statement denying that there had been any reduction in wages and charged that Communists were responsible for the strike.

Canton Daily News Sold to Competitor

CANTON, O., July 3.—(INS)—James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and owner of the Canton Daily News, announced suspension of that newspaper with today's edition. The plant, circulation and other assets, sold to Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., publishers of the Canton Repository, are estimated at $1,000,000.

Don R. Mellett, assassinated in 1926 by gangsters, was editor of the News, which received the Pulitzer gold medal award for its fight against crime and vice.

Pittsburgh Family Sails for Europe

NEW YORK, July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Elliott and daughter, Miss Virginia Elliott, and son, Kenneth Elliott, of 33 Castle Shannon road, Pittsburgh, sailed for Europe yesterday on the California, of the Anchor Line. Miss Elliott said they planned to spend two months abroad. They will visit seven countries.

Dr. E. W. Morrison, of Pittsburgh, also was a passenger in the California.

TRUCK KILLS MAN, 2 HELD

Two men riding on a truck which fatally injured John McVeigh, 51, of Fifteenth street, Sharpsburg, at Main and Fourteenth streets, Sharpsburg, late yesterday, were held in the county jail today.

McVeigh died in St. Francis Hospital shortly after he was struck by the truck. Sharpsburg police arrested William McCormick, of Uniontown, and Howard Gilchrist, of Laketon road, Wilkinsburg.

Three persons escaped injury when their automobile, sideswiped by another machine, ran off River road, near Beck's Run road, and plunged down a 12-foot embankment last night. William McClelland, 16, of 1625 Berkshire avenue, the driver, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McClelland, emerged from the machine unhurt. Police sought the driver of the other car, who failed to stop.

Irene Welsky, 5, of 45 Magdelene street, was taken to the South Side Hospital last night after being struck by an automobile driven by Fred Tyhurst, of 692 Warrington avenue, police reported.

11 FINED IN SAFETY DRIVE

Eleven reckless drivers were fined either $5 or $10 in Traffic Court today in the safety campaign started three weeks ago. One person forfeited bail of $50, five failed to appear, five had their cases postponed and eight were discharged. Twenty-six cases not connected with the recent drive were also disposed of.

Less than 45 per cent of all cars entering Friendship avenue, one of Pittsburgh's through traffic streets, came to a dead stop as required by law, statistics gathered by the Boy Scouts for the Better Traffic Committee, May 23, show, according to City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre, of the Bureau of Tariff Planning, today.

While 12,733 trucks enter the triangle during a 10½-hour working day, there are only 516 horse drawn vehicles, figures compiled by W. J. Moore, of the Better Traffic Committee, show.

FIGHT JADWIN'S APPOINTMENT

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A lively Senate fight was brewing today against President Hoover's appointment of Gen. Edgar Jadwin, former chief of army engineers, as chairman of the new Federal Power Commission.

Jadwin's support of the power trust's fight for Muscle Shoals, his effort to turn over the great falls of the Potomac for exploitation, and other phases of his power record are being examined by Senators. This is expected to lead to hearings before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee to determine whether he shall be confirmed.

Jadwin was in charge of Muscle Shoals when the War Department first refused to sell current from there to southern cities, requiring consumers to buy it instead from the Alabama Power Company at from 30 to 50 times the price the government charged that company.

He also opposed the government project at Boulder Dam, now getting started.

'CROSS' WINGING WEST AGAIN

CHICAGO, July 3.—(AP)—The Southern Cross, battered veteran of oceanic flight, winged away from the Curtiss-Wright Glenview airport at 8:45 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) today, San Francisco-bound.

With Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith at the controls and clear skies aloft, the trimotored Fokker nosed hurriedly westward to complete its cross-continental flight from New York.

His crew of the North Atlantic flight were with Kingsford-Smith: Capt. J. P. Saul, navigator; John W. Stanage, radio operator, and M. E. Van Dyk, co-pilot.

"There are no more oceans to cross," Kingsford-Smith said before the takeoff. "We will fly the Southern Cross to California, where we will decide what to do with her."

U. S. Court Closes Bar in Braddock

A temporary injunction was granted by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, in Federal Court, today, against a bar on the first floor of 224 Eighth street, Braddock. CONNELLSVILLE BANKS FIRM

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., July 3.—The Citizens National and the Second National banks, backed by the Federal Reserve Bank of the district, today were standing firm, despite the closing Tuesday of the Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania and the Union National Bank, tying up deposits of more than $3,500,000.

F. E. Markell, president of the Citizens National Bank, today said:

"The Citizens National and the Second National are as strong as any banks could possibly be. We are backed up by the Federal Reserve Bank and have more money than we need.

"We expect that half of the money withdrawn yesterday will be put back today. We have anticipated the present situation and have been prepared to meet it. The two banks are absolutely sound."

Pinchot, Martin Discuss Fall Election Campaign

MILFORD, Pa., July 3.—(AP)—Following a visit by State Treasurer Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican State Committee, to Gifford Pinchot, certified as Republican nominee for governor by the primary official returns, to discuss the campaign for the general election next November, an announcement regarding the state committee's campaign policy was expected shortly.

Gen. Martin came to Mr. Pinchot's home in Milford last night and dined with the former Governor and Mrs. Pinchot. Pinchot said:

"Gen. Martin came up here to discuss plans for the coming campaign. Any further announcement of the details of our talk must be made public by him."

AID PROMISED PENNINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—(AP)—Lieut. Com. John D. Pennington, newly appointed prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, after a visit to Mayor Mackey, Director of Public Safety Schofield and other city officials, expressed gratification over promised co-operation. He said:

"I consider my post as rather a co-ordinating job than one of administration. I will encourage the closest co-operation between my men and the city authorities.

"I make no threats against anybody, politicians or otherwise. It is my intention to conduct this office sanely, legally, honestly and quietly, with the hope that my manner will merit the support of the good citizens."

Commander Pennington said he intends to retain all the men turned over to him by his predecessor, unless they fail to perform their duties.

ROBBERY FAILS, FUGITIVE HELD

Edgar Russell, 26, of Cleveland, arrested last night after a hand-to-hand struggle with Jack Pickins, of 213 Grantham street, employe of the Riverside gas station on Isabella street, near Anderson, was held for court today on the charge of carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms.

Russel said he had escaped from the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus, last week, by just walking out. He declared he was a trusty and had served seven and one-half years of a 25-year sentence for holding up a Cleveland speakeasy.

Police at Columbus say Russell was first arrested when a boy and was released on parole after serving a term at the Mansfield Reformatory. In 1922 he was arrested for the holdup of a soft drink establishment, and after a long delay was convicted in 1925, being sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

He escaped January 26, police say.

'Spy's Diary' Said to Tell How U. S. Ship Was Sunk

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Disjointed extracts from the diary of a man who was supposed to have claimed partial credit for the disappearance of the collier Cyclops in West Indian waters during the World War were being studied today by the Navy.

The way the naval collier went has remained a question unanswered since the ship was last seen bound for Baltimore in 1918.

The latest clues are these garbled excerpts from this diary, relayed to the office of Naval Intelligence from a former Marine sergeant. The sergeant said he met the author of the diary in San Antonio, Tex., and had read the diary in an effort to learn something about the man after he disappeared.

These extracts might be true copies of portions of the diary in the hands of the former Marine, the Navy officers said, and yet be the scribblings of an unbalanced mind.

The diary is said to indicate that the ship was sent to the bottom by explosives placed around the engine room by four men in enemy pay. They had made arrangements to leave in a small boat, but only two succeeded and were picked up by a "foreign ship" which took them to Europe. Subsequently one of the men died and the other retained the diary which came to the attention of the marine.

SERVICE MEN'S PICNIC PLANS COMPLETE

Great Throng Assured for Annual Event at Kennywood Park Saturday

Kennywood Park's new amusements are waiting for Saturday's giant influx of present and former soldiers, sailors, Marines Army and Red Cross nurses, and other military and auxiliary workers.

A new Tom Thumb golf course, hazards of which remind General Chairman Frank Bingham of shell holes in France, he says, an auto race which Legionnaire Charles Lane Jr. prescribes for aviators and a free miniature menagerie for children of the Sun-Telegraph's guests of the day are all ready, according to A. B. McSwigan, president of the park.

BIG TURNOUT CERTAIN

A big turnout has been promised by the One Hundred Seventy-Sixth Field Artillery unit of the National Guard. The Oakland outfit is taking machine guns and light equipment to the park, where they will be on display in a tent which will serve as recruiting headquarters for the outfit.

Col. W. R. Dunlap commander of the regiment and member of the American Legion committee for the picnic promises an unusual display of war-time trophies.

A number of former members of German Austrian and Bulgarian military forces in the World War have expressed their desire to accept the invitation to join the reunion from the committee, headed by Bingham and Harry S. Hall. Members of all armies on both sides in the World War are welcome.

RED CROSS ON HAND

Under Mrs. Charles Goldsmith of the Red Cross disabled veterans in government hospitals will travel to the park from Marine Hospital in cars of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. A number of staff members from the government hospitals in the Pittsburgh district are preparing to attend with the soldiers.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the disabled service men and veterans of the Civil War will be guests at dinner. The Sun-Telegraph has made arrangements for the best beefsteak procurable for the diners.

Uniforms are to be worn by as many as possible by especial request of the committee. These will serve as identification. Where it is inconvenient to wear uniforms, discharge papers or service organization buttons will serve.

GET FREE TICKETS

At the entrances to the park the veterans will be given cards on which they will write their names, addresses and outfit numbers. These they will present, with suitable identification, at the dining pavilion. A strip of tickets to park amusements will be given each man or woman, with a second strip if he has a companion of the opposite sex with him.

The Salvation Army has promised to have lassies on hand to supply visiting doughboys gobs and devil dogs with doughnuts and coffee. According to McCann's, the doughnuts and coffee will both be an improvement on some of the rations served behind the lines. In size and freshness this store has promised to excel wartime records.

Salvation Army headquarters have always been popular with former service men and women, it is said. Ten workers will attempt to maintain their standards at the park booth. They are Capt. P. Vaughn, in charge; Capt. and Mrs. Charles McLaughlin, Capt. Helen Snow, Capt. Alva Kohler, Capt. Dorothy Stevenson, Lieut. Grace Cuppe, Lieut. Mary Loonan, Lieut. Julia Whitmore and Corp. Cadets Lewis and Vigner.

BLAME YARDLEY IN 2 DEATHS

Herbert H. Yardley, of Beechwood boulevard, was held responsible for the deaths of two children by a Blair County coroner's jury that last night in Altoona investigated the death of Winifred and Mary L. Moser, sisters, aged 3 and 5, who were fatally injured in an automobile wreck Sunday near that city.

No formal charges have yet been filed against Yardley, who is sales manager of the Nash-Pittsburgh Auto Company here. It was said that charges would not be filed until deputy coroners had conferred with District Attorney Richard H. Gilbert of Blair County. Usually manslaughter charges are preferred in such cases.

It was said the two children were riding with their father, Thomas D. Moser, Sr., and that the elder Moser had driven from a filling station directly across the highway into the path of Yardley's machine.

BANKS BECOME TRUST CO.

That the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company, Butler street and Penn avenue, has succeeded the Pennsylvania Savings Bank, which previously had absorbed the Pennsylvania National Bank, voluntarily liquidated, was announced by the controller of the currency in Washington, an Associated Press dispatch says.

The new bank has resources of $4,700,000, capital of $300,000, surplus of $200,000 and undivided profits of $100,000.

Officers are Joseph A. Kelly, president; H. T. Aufderheide, vice president; C. S. Bennett, secretary-treasurer; O. W. Brose, assistant secretary-treasurer, and these directors: C. A. Ahlborn, C. W. Davison, H. P. Gazzam, Thomas Higgins, R. W. Kiser, C. G. Purse, Q. S. Snyder, W. Boehm, G. J. Henninger, C. A. Locke, C. B. Karns, Kelly, Aufderheide and Bennett.

ALLIES BLVD. TO CLOSE INBOUND

The Boulevard of the Allies will be closed to inbound traffic from July 7 to approximately July 19, inclusive, during the repairs to Viaduct No. 2, crossing Forbes street at Brady street.

Outbound traffic will not be interrupted, provided automobilists take proper care in passing the construction work, Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert announced.

A detour via Halket or Craft along Forbes street is suggested. The work consists of the placing of concrete paving to eliminate skids, and the construction of a new curb guard.

Itchy Eczema Caused Awful Eruptions. Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out in blisters on my hands and when I opened them water came from them. It burned and itched and when I scratched it caused awful eruptions. I could not put my hands in water because they burned so, and could not do my work.

"I used all kinds of ointments but they did no good. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I purchased more and was completely healed in two weeks." (Signed) Miss Hattie Zimmerman, R. 3, Box 39, Pine Grove, Pa., April 7, 1930.

THANKS PITTSBURGH

. . . For the wonderful reception given the new American Austin cars here.

. . . For the rush of orders that have depleted our stock of display cars.

. . . And, finally, for the fact that depletion, coming after a week of days and nights spent in showing, demonstrating and selling Austin cars, will make it necessary for us to be closed July Fourth. Open again with a new stock July Fifth.

Thank You, Pittsburgh!

The blonde that burns

Sunburn dangerous to some skins What to do

"A CONSIDERABLE number of blonde Nordics can't stand sunburn," says a noted health officer. "They don't tan. They just burn. And often they get actually ill from the effects of the sun."

And sunburn is not only injurious to your delicate skin, it is unbecoming. Better avoid it. Even on cloudy days there may be enough violet rays to cause irritation. Use a parasol and wear a hat. Look out for the reflected violet rays from the water and take your "Vaseline" Jelly along on all outings for complete protection. The tube slips easily into your hand bag.

Before you go out, apply a thin layer to the exposed skin, face, arms, neck, legs (if you go without stockings). Wipe it off with cleansing tissues and apply powder. This will give a protective film over the skin.

And if you feel yourself burning, apply a fresh layer and leave it on. Never mind the looks. Better be safe than sick.

This is a harmless way to save yourself trouble. Do try it. "Vaseline" Jelly can be bought anywhere, in jars or tubes, and it is very inexpensive.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

December 16 Is Set for Cotillion

When social arbiters leave town this month for their summer places in Canada, in New England, or in the Lake district, they'll have the satisfaction of knowing that nearly all of the dates for important society events for the coming winter are arranged, with no fear of impending chaos always created when several notable affairs are scheduled for the same time.

The debut dates have nearly all been announced, and now the date of that event of events for debs and other members of the younger set, the cotillion, has been named. The cotillion will be held December 16 in the Pittsburgh Club, of course.

And I might add that the New Year's ball of the Pittsburgh Club will be held again this year on New Year's eve. Many dinners for the debutantes always precede these two society events, so important that one might correctly call them functions.

And there's an event of interest for the very, very young set I want to mention, too. And it's taking place tomorrow.

The annual children's party for the sons and daughters of Sewickley Heights folks and other members of the Allegheny Country Club will be held tomorrow afternoon in the clubhouse. And Mrs. William Christopher Robinson is arranging the event.

Eastern Wedding

Even though here at home we have come to almost the last bride in the June and July procession, there are weddings out of town later on that concern Pittsburgh society folks. Members of our younger set are often in bridal parties in the East, and others go to New York, Philadelphia or Washington for marriages of sisters, cousins and nieces.

A week from today there'll be a wedding in the East of marked interest since the bride, Jean Browne Scott, daughter of the John R. K. Scotts, of Glenhardie Farms, Strafford, Pa., has frequently visited her relatives here, and in the past has been an exhibitor of interesting horses at Sewickley horse shows.

Jean will marry Dr. Donald Weston Darby, son of Dr. and Mrs. George D. B. Darby, of Linlithgown, Merion, Pa., on July 10 in the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge.

Pittsburgh folks who'll attend the wedding include the Walter Logan Hardies and their daughter Janet, of Bartlett street, and the James Hiller Hardies, of Darlington road.

Mrs. James Hiller Hardie will be matron of honor at the wedding, and Janet will be her cousin's maid of honor. Mrs. Hardie has already left for Philadelphia, and Janet has been there for the past three weeks and has been attending the many interesting entertainments being given for the bride-elect.

James Hiller Hardie will leave for Philadelphia this evening, and the Walter Logan Hardies will probably go East the early part of next week.

Varied News

Europe is vying with Canada and resorts in New England for the favor of Pittsburgh society folks. Among those who'll summer in Europe are the Arthur E. Brauns and their daughter Elizabeth Braun, of Morewood Heights. They plan to sail in mid-July for the continent.

From time to time news comes to us from Newport of all sorts of delightful entertainments given by a former Pittsburgh society woman, Mrs. George Mesta, now of Washington and New York.

On the evening of the Fourth Mrs. Mesta will give the first large dance of the summer season at exclusive Newport when she'll entertain at the Rocks. And before her dance she'll entertain at a large dinner.

This evening there'll be an interesting event, perhaps the last until fall, for the debutantes. Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, of Sewickley Heights, will give a dinner dance in honor of Hester Harton Browne, of Louisville, Ky., daughter of the Richard Holliday Semples, who are former Sewickleyites. Hester will be a debutante of the fall.

Many more folks are leaving daily for their favorite summering places. Mrs. Talmar D. Denny has gone to her summer place at York Harbor, Me., after spending a few days in New York.

And the Samuel Alfred McClungs, of Murray Hill avenue, their daughters, Mary Mellon McClung, Isabel McClung and Cynthia McClung, and their sons, John McClung and Samuel A. McClung, Jr., have opened their summer home, Lime Kiln Farm, Cherry Valley, N. Y., where they'll remain until September.

The William J. Powells, who've been motoring through Pennsylvania, will be at the Rolling Rock Club for over the Fourth. And Mrs. Powell's father and mother, the Charles Howard Wests, will join them.

Next week Mrs. West is leaving for an eastern motor trip, I might add, with Mrs. Herman Veeder, of Denniston avenue, and her son,

Last evening at 7:30 o'clock, Miss Elinor Barclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Barclay, of King avenue, and Harold D. Reehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Reehl, of New Brighton, Pa., were married in the home of the bride's parents. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. S. N. Hutchinson, of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

The bride wore a princess gown of ivory satin with a brief train, and a tulle veil fell from her cap of Duchess lace with inserts of old rose point. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Her sister, Miss Betty Barclay, was the maid of honor, and Mrs. Daniel Gage, Jr., of Eugene, Ore., was the matron of honor. Both wore princess gowns of pink chiffon trimmed with bows of blue velvet, and carried pink rosebuds and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids included Mrs. Walter E. Werner, of Pittsburgh, and another sister, Mrs. J. H. Tinker, Jr., of Philadelphia, who wore blue chiffon and carried pink rosebuds and blue delphinium.

Wilbur F. Reehl was his brother's best man. The ushers included Robert M. Barclay, a brother of the bride; Walter M. Werner, Donald D. Couch, of Pittsburgh, and Willard Bauer, of Rochester, Pa.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Reehl left for a motor trip. They will make their home in Mt. Lebanon upon their return.

Hotel Wedding

At a wedding in the Schenley Hotel ballroom on the evening of June 30, Miss Adlyn H. Foster, daughter of Mrs. Wolfe B. Foster, of the Morrowfield Hotel, became the bride of Chester E. Frankel, of New York. Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Newark, N. J., and Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, S. Bernard Foster, wore a gown of cream satin with a court train lined with chiffon. Her veil ended in a spread of Duchess and rose point lace, a family heirloom, and she carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies. She was attended by Mrs. Morris Lubschansky, of New London, Conn., sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor, who wore yellow crepe and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses. Miss Rosalin Simon, of Newark, N. J., was the maid of honor and wore turquoise blue crepe and carried sweetheart roses and delphinium. She is the fiancee of the bride's brother. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Benjamin Rosenthal, of Trenton, N. J., and Miss Musette Balber, in coral crepe, and Miss Louise Lavatur, of Atlantic City, and Mrs. Max Pincus in green crepe. They all carried garden flowers. Morris Lubschansky was his brother-in-law's best man. The ushers included Meyer Morton, of Chicago; Benjamin Rosenthal, of Trenton; Bernard D. Levaur and Louis Hubshman.

The bride's mother wore flesh chiffon with seed pearls and crystal motifs and a shoulder corsage of green orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Frankel left for New York and sailed yesterday for an extended European trip. They will make their home in New York upon their return.

Bride Of June

Miss Catherine Ellen Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Wallace, of Thomas boulevard, became the bride of Albert Joseph Monahan, of Graham street, on Wednesday, June 25, in the Chapel of Christ the King, Sansbury Hall, St. Mary's of the Springs, Columbus, O. The Rev. Raymond V. Conway, of Pittsburgh, cousin of the bride, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with long, tight-fitting sleeves. A train of satin and chiffon embroidered in seed pearls fell from the shoulders. Her tulle veil was held by a cap of Duchess lace caught with orange blossoms, and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. T. Joseph Feeney, as the matron of honor, wore peach chiffon with a picture hat of green horsehair. She carried talisman roses and delphinium. Paul Emmett Reilly, of Altoona, was the best man.

A reception was held in the College Lounge, and a breakfast was served in the Columbus Country Club. After a honeymoon in Canada Mr. and Mrs. Monahan will be at home in Hobart street, Pittsburgh.

Evening Wedding

On Tuesday evening, June 17, at 7 o'clock, Miss Ida Sylvia Shaffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shaffer, of Overhill street, became the bride of William Barron, of Masontown, in the El Tower Hotel.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, with a tulle veil having a cap in turban fashion. She carried calla lilies. Her sister, Miss Ethel Shaffer, as maid of honor, wore a gown of green tulle and satin and carried tea roses. The bridegroom's niece, Miss Freda Kopplemman, of Boston, was the flower girl, and wore pink and blue chiffon and carried a wrist basket of summer flowers. Louis Barron was his brother's best man. The ushers included David M. Fineman, of Pittsburgh; Frank Shaffer, of Cleveland; Morris Barron, of Mt. Pleasant; Louis Janoffsky, of Baltimore; Edward Smith, of Terre Haute, Ind., and David Barron, of Masontown. Officiating was Rabbi B. A. Lichter.

After the ceremony there was a dinner for members of the families, and later Mr. and Mrs. Barron left for an extended trip to Atlantic City and Philadelphia, and will live in Masontown.

Her mother's wedding gown of creamy point d'esprit lace fashioned in the empire mode was worn by Miss Florence Virginia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Jones, of Singer place, Wilkinsburg, when she became the bride at noon today in the Jones home of William Alexander Maddox, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga. The Rev. Dr. J. F. Troupe, of the Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, performed the ceremony before an embankment of cibotium ferns, delphinium, roses and baby's breath.

The bride's gown had a bertha of point d'esprit, and she wore a veil of tulle with a cap of the same lace, wreathed with orange blossoms. She carried bride's roses.

Mrs. Jones, mother of the bride, wore beige lace and a corsage of pink roses. There were no attendants. Following the wedding was a breakfast in the Jones home. After September 1 Mr. and Mrs. Maddox will be at home in Biddle avenue, Wilkinsburg, following a New England motor trip.

The bride, who has just completed her junior year at the Pennsylvania College for Women, will complete her course this winter. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Georgia School of Technology.

Mr. Maddox is a descendant of two of Georgia's oldest families, the Maddox and Goodwin families. His cousin, Alexander Hopkins, and Byron Glover, both of Atlanta, Ga., were guests at the wedding.

Plans Made

Plans for next year were discussed yesterday at a luncheon of the board of directors and the Woman's Auxiliary to the Goodwill Industries for which Mrs. A. C. McMillan, of Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon, was hostess in her home. Mrs. McMillan is the re-elected president of the auxiliary, which is an important unit in the work of the Industries. At the Goodwill plant, extending from 2801 to 2817 Liberty avenue, 65 different activities were afforded those employed there during the year.

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JULY 3.—The old bathing suit is not what it used to be. Each season it is being glorified and elaborated until it is of often now an ensemble of three pieces and sometimes more. The simple-life cult evidently has no place at the sea shore, for we demand life, verve and color even in the outfit devised for the material dip and the prolonged beach bask afterwards. All sorts of fascinating designs and amusing fabrics are employed by the couturiers for these ensembles, and just when it seems impossible for any more original ideas to be launched, along comes a new version of the seaside suit.

We do not know as yet what success these elaborate bathing and beach ensembles are enjoying at the resorts on your side of the ocean, but at our smart sea shore spots, they add vast splashes of color to the seascape. And color is what we seem to demand in every phase of life, even the most utilitarian.

THE BATHING ensemble sketched is from Vionnet who generally glorifies anything she handles. The bathing suit is of canary yellow hand-knit wool, and over it is worn a wrap-over skirt of black jersey with a yellow pleated fold in front. There is a two-thirds length coat of black jersey faced and trimmed with the gay yellow wool, and a corded belt of roped skein wool, one cord yellow, the other black, ending in fluffy wool balls.

ALTHOUGH ONE does not see so many printed chiffons as were current last year, they are still plentiful and every couturier is careful to include several models in his Summer collection. The model shown here is from Lenief who uses a print of large floral design of two tones of gray with touches of bright yellow forming the center of each flower. The simple straight bodice is draped at the natural waistline and caught at the front beneath a buckle of gold and gray enamel. Folds of the material form a sort of hip yoke bordered with a circular shallow peplum. The wide skirt hangs in circular folds at each side and is very slightly shorter in front.

Radio Broadcasts From Floor of Rhine

BINGEN, Germany, July 3.—(AP.)—From the bottom of the Rhine has come a human voice. A radio announcer went down in a diving bell and described the work of deepening the ship channel.

SOCIAL NOTES

The betrothal of Miss Lucille Aul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Aul, of Elmwood, Wheeling, W. Va., to Harold K. Hastings, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hastings, of Pittsburgh, was made known at a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lane Kinnucan at Elm Crest, the estate of Mrs. Kinnucan's parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Ehrhard Weiss. The long table was centered with garden flowers. Among the guests were Miss Louise Arrott, A. B. Stevenson, A. L. Wagner, Harold K. Hastings, of Pittsburgh, and Joseph Blair, of Greensburg.

Miss Aul attended Ely Court at Greenwich, Conn., and her fiance is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. No date has been named for the wedding.

Attorney Harold Hawkins, of Waynesburg, and Miss Bertha Kinney, of Morgantown, were married recently in Morgantown.

They will make their home in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Hawkins is a graduate of Penn State and of Harvard Law School.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

There should be a law against blasting illusion but so long as there is no law we shall continue to blast them with the same devastating explosion which marks our every effort. The illusion we now purpose to blast is the time-announcements-over-the-radio illusion.

Who among you has not imagined that as the gong strikes over the radio into a deep silence the whole broadcasting studio stands by tensely, praying that the gong misses not a split second? Nobody.

Well we saw it done. We saw Announcer Allen Thrasher merely pick up a little hickey, glance nonchalantly at the clock and, while he spoke into the microphone idly tap a small sounding board. It was all done very languidly. Mr. Thrasher announcing that when the gong struck it would be exactly two minutes and 15 seconds past 6 o'clock. And he was right. It was.

Mention the lost-ball situation at the Schenley public links to the pro, Al McBride, and he'll reward you with a glance of despair. Balls are lost on the Schenley course more successfully than on any other course in the land. In fact it was at Schenley that they first established the rule that a ball wasn't lost until it stopped rolling.

When we say "lost" we're being generous, of course. McBride can tell you the heights of ingenuity which have been attained by persons who apparently have a mania for accumulating mere golf balls. There was the fellow—a golfer, as a matter of fact—who attached a rubber cup to the bottom of a club and strolled about the course pulling in golf balls innocently. There was also the gentleman who would hide in the trees back of No. 11 green and chase his dog after balls as they dropped near the green from the hidden tee. Then there was the policeman assigned to scatter a gang of thieving youngsters who hid in the gulley alongside No. 10 fairway. They say that he never caught any of the culprits, but instead encouraged them to lift balls and split the proceeds—with him.

When the late Charles Bregg, probably the most famed drama critic ever to write for a Pittsburgh newspaper, was penning [illegible] for the press a young came to him one day with utographed photograph of [illegible] Sothern, noted interpreter of Shakespeare.

"Mr. Sothern mailed me this picture at my request," the visitor explained, "but he's a bad writer and I can't read the inscription."

"Neither can I," Mr. Bregg confessed, "but the next time Sothern comes to town I'll ask him to interpret it."

Mr. Bregg kept his promise.

But Mr. Sothern couldn't read his own writing!

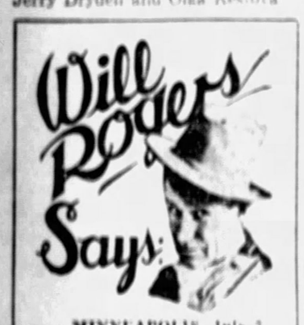
That big, black rhinoceros in the cage with the smaller one in Carnegie Museum was shot by Col. Theodore Roosevelt the President . . . And the smaller one was brought in by Childs Frick, son of Henry Clay Frick, who gave five of his millions to Mercy Hospital because he liked the treatment he received there after he was shot by that anarchist.

Fireworks Display In West View Park

Dancing, both afternoon and evening, with Nick Parelle and his orchestra supplying the music, and concerts by the Grand Army Band, comprising a special program of patriotic, classical and popular music, and the "Battle in the Clouds," a fireworks display which will take place at 10 p. m. are announced as the principal attractions for the Fourth of July in West View Park.

Bill for Fourth At Kleins Villa

Jimmy Joy and his orchestra will be the feature holiday attraction tomorrow in Eddie Klein's Villa, Babcock boulevard. Headed by Sammy Walsh, the popular master of ceremonies, the floor show will feature Rose Sinnott, Jerry Dryden and Olga Restova.



MINNEAPOLIS, July 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover has done lots of things, but he never trained circus animals before. Up to now the animals have had him hemmed up doing the tricks, instead of them. Now he is a man that is quick to learn anything new, and the minute he finds out they are cowardly, why he will grab that sharp pole, and pistol, and he will have congressional lions, and senatorial hyenas jumping through more fire hoops, and rolling more barrels than you ever heard of, and the audience will applaud and eat it up. They will dog it if he takes after 'em. Roosevelt jumped 'em into the Potomac with their clothes on. Sic 'em, Herb. Yours,

WILL.

ALWAYS ROMANCE!

William Powell and Marion Schilling elude the sluethe long enough at least for one romantic episode in "Shadow of the Law," talkie opening today in the Stanley.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

To Joe Schenck

I think that for a while you're apt to miss
The brisk applause—the glamour of the show;
There is an end to all such froth as this
Where you are resting, Joe.

But lads like you are welcome anywhere,
The gates will open for your smiling face
And Heaven, now that you are dwelling there
Will be a better place.

So, bide your time, the years are quick to go,
And when we reach the turning in the lane;
We will be glad—if you will promise, Joe,
To sing for us, again!

Don Wahn.

Add Tough Audiences

Leslie Whalen, representative for Harold Lloyd, recently holidayed with the star at Honolulu. On the day they arrived a local man about town showed them around.

"How's this," said the M. A. T. as he took them to Waikiki Beach, "some beach, eh?"

"Oh, I dunno," sniffed Whalen. "We have beaches as good at Atlantic City and Asbury Park."

"Well, then," said the guide, "look at those mountains. Plenty pretty, what?"

"But we have mountains in America just as great, the Catskills, the Rockies, the Blue Ridge, etc.," grunted Whalen.

The man about town decided to top everything by showing off a volcano from which the steam was issuing.

"There, now!" he boasted. "Look at that. You haven't anything like THAT in America!"

"No, we haven't," was the indifferent reply, "but we have a fire department in New York that could put that out in 10 minutes!"

Haw!

And Bill Haya offers his definition of a drunk, to wit:

"A fellow is drunk when he meanders out onto the front lawn, lies down and clutches the grass to keep from falling off the world."

Add Sillies

Sam Fischer revises it in this manner:

"Who was that lady I saw you with last night?"

"That was no lady, that was the night before last."

As If We Didn't Know

They were still arguing about the Sharkey-Smelly "fight" at the Friars last night.

"Well," yelled a furious fight fanatic, "say what you like about Schmeling, but he was feeling Sharkey out!"

"That's what I say," was the retort, "with his chin!"

Police!

Merritt S. Franken can make up a sentence containing the word "Apollo" like this:

"An Apollo day keeps the doctor away."

Scene

As we reported here the other column, Jack Oakie, the chinema favorite, was fired out of the "Peggy Ann" chorus two years ago. Today Oakie attracts heavier trade than Fairbanks, Chevalier and name any other star. But Oakie has never forgotten the lad who fired him, one Murray Queen, now the stage manager for "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

At the Club Abbey, they met for the first time since Queen dismissed him. Oakie pretended to be affable, and then proceeded to embarrass his former boss. It wasn't in good taste, but you know how it is when you remember the early struggles and those who gave you a heartache.

However, Mr. Queen said to Mr. Oakie:

"The luckiest break you ever got, Jack, was when I fired you. You were a so-so chorus boy, but I'll admit you are the greatest box office attraction now."

"I know I am," was the reply.

Boys Will Be Bores

At the Brooklyn Paramount, where Oakie is now packing houses with Rudy Vallee on the same card, the flip cracks are abundant. Vallee, it appears, said something that irked Oakie.

"Listen to me, big boy," yipped Oakie. "Some of these days you are going to bust into a rich man's home and knock a bust of me off the mantlepiece!"

Why Colyumists Die Young

The height of something or other, as we once remarked, would be for Walter Winchell to get sore because someone said something about him. One of those detective story mags, a magazine that is supposed to deal in facts, offers this counterfeit paragraph in a Rothstein fable:

"... in this respect the Rothstein murder offers a parallel. The New York understanding is that his slayer was known beforehand to several persons and now is known to even more. The editor of a tabloid was sure Walter Winchell, one of its star reporters, had full information of the crime and was withholding it. So sure was he that he discharged Winchell from his position."

And they hang pictures! ... or, as the Hearst slogan goes: "Get it first, but first get it right!"

There, Now!

Confrere Hellinger, the actor, the other column, printed a telegram from Phil Baker, the newspaperman, which read:

"Can offer you $22.50 to play Squeedunk next week with Walter Winchell and $42.50 without him."

But this is a funnier gag, Mr. Hellinger, who is now appearing in Brooklyn (wherever that is!) objected to following a monkey act. The house manager sustained the objection, saying:

"You're absolutely right, old man, people may think it's an encore."

SCREEN CONTRIBUTES MANY SONGS SINCE TALK ARRIVAL

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyrighted, 1930, by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 3.

Since the coming of the talkies, the nine major studios have introduced 1,086 new songs in their feature productions.

These amazing figures were unearthed by this department in an effort to determine just how much the song-writers have done to aid for Hollywood.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is the leading contender with 397 songs copyrighted and published. Some of these have been tremendous hits, for instance, "Happy Days," "Marianne," "The Broadway Melody," "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," "Singin' in the Rain," "The Pagan Love Song" and many others.

William Haines

Warner Brothers and First National combined have introduced 350 numbers. "Sonny Boy," of course, is one of the smash hits of all times. "Cryin' for the Carolines," "There's a Rainbow Round My Shoulder" and "Tip-Toe Thru the Tulips" are others.

Fox claims 142 songs and is credited with something of a record in the five hits that De Sylva, Brown and Henderson wrote for "Sunnyside Up." These were "Sunnyside Up," "I'm a Dreamer, Aren't We All," "If I had a Talking Picture," "Turn on the Heat" and "You've Got Me Picking Petals Off a Daisy."

Universal has introduced 67 numbers, Paramount, 56 (including "The Parade" and "Sing You Sinners"), R K O 33, Pathe, 24, and United Artists, 17, (including "Coquette" and "Puttin' on the Ritz").

All the leading song-writers in the country either are in Hollywood now, or have been at some time in the last two years. And, while it is predicted that the next year will see a sharp decrease in musical pictures, there still are dozens of composers and lyricists under contract to the various studios.

EASTWARD HO!

Some of the free-lance composers will not fare so well. Did you hear their new theme song? "Hello Albuquerque."

INFLAMMABLE STUFF

Now that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has developed such a hit in "Ex-Wife" ("The Divorcee"), other studios are angling for sensational novels that can be retitled. Warner Brothers has just bought "Ex-Mistress," and will produce it under a different name on their new schedule.

MOVIE CLOCK

Hours at which feature photoplays begin in first run houses are in accordance with the following time schedule:

POWELL AND CHANEY PROMINENT IN NEW TALKIES

"Shadow of the Law," starring William Powell, opens on the Stanley screen today. The new stage show is titled "Golden Gate Revue."

Lon Chaney, talking for the first time on the screen, uses five voices in "The Unholy Three," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer mystery drama, which comes to the Penn tomorrow.

Montagu Love, who has a prominent role in Radio Pictures all-talking drama, "Inside the Lines," coming to the RKO Sheridan Square Monday, is a cartoonist by hobby. His pet pastime is to make sketches of fellow-players between scenes.

"With Byrd at the South Pole," Paramount's thrilling screen version of the intrepid explorer's daring journey in the frozen wastes of the Antarctic, opens in the Enright tomorrow.

Lois Moran will open on the Harris screen Saturday in a talkie titled "Not Damaged."

"All Quiet on the Western Front," war film, will begin a sixth week in the Pitt Monday.

After an absence of several years, Winifred Westover returned to the screen to create the part of the heroine in Herbert Brenon's production of "Lummox," adapted from Fannie Hurst's novel of the same name, which comes to the Aldine tomorrow.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

A TRIP BEHIND THE scenes during a radio broadcast is one feature on the air tonight, augmented by the appearance of Belle Baker with Rudy Vallee and a program in tribute to P. T. Barnum.

For the studio visitation tune KDKA at 11. For Belle Baker, key WCAE at 8, and for the revival of good old circus days tune WCAE at 9 o'clock.

Belle Baker

A new composition by Irving Berlin is to be sung by Lewis James on the 10 o'clock program over WCAE.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, is to speak on "The George Washington Bi-Centennial of 1932" tomorrow night at 9:30 over WCAE. The speech will be part of the Fourth of July celebration in the Sylvan Theater, Washington, D. C.

Those who saw real fireworks 12 years ago will no doubt enjoy the Nit Wit recreation on WJAS at 8 p. m. Friday.

"Deep in My Heart" is a duet on the 9:30 program of Armour, KDKA. Jessica Dragonette is to sing "My Hero," from "The Chocolate Soldier," as a WCAE highlight tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT only two of the 12 elevators in the William Penn Hotel go to the twenty-first floor, occupied by KDKA?

THAT Frank Andrini, Noon Novelties at WCAE, plays six instruments?

THAT G. Dare Fleck's voice was the first to be heard via radio on the Antarctic Continent during Byrd's expedition?

THAT Beulah Yorkin, Charleroi soprano on KDKA at 6 tonight, has sung over the networks?

THAT the Armour program costs $1,320 each presentation?

THAT listeners in Budapest pay 45 cents a month to receive radio programs?

THAT Harry Reser, leader of the Eskimos, is a direct descendant of Davy Crockett, the famed Tennessee rifleman?

THAT Sara Logan, soprano on the Allegheny Memorial Park program, recently sang over the WEAF network?

THAT William Daly, director of the Raleigh Revue, has a hobby of collecting maps and pastes them around the walls in his home the same as other persons use wall paper?

Joyous Foot Bath Then Lift Out CORNS
Root and All—Out to Stay

Two tablespoonfuls of that amazingly refreshing and foot invigorating Radox to one gallon of water makes a foot bath which after 3 or 4 nights' soaking (20 minutes) lifts out aching, maddening corns, roots and all.

Radox softens the hard outer layers of corn—and oxygen which Radox liberates, enters the pores, each night penetrating further and further, carrying the salts right to root of corn, which can be lifted out, bodily.
Wonderful to take out pain and burning and refresh tired feet!
Get a package of Radox at Mayflower Drug Stores or any druggist and know the joyous comfort of corn and callous-free feet—Radox is the modern, scientific method to remove corns which completely eliminates old-fashioned plasters, dangerous cutting, skin destroying acids and obsolete methods.

Skinny, I Gained 25 Lbs. and Lovely, Clear Skin Quick

"I was underweight for years. Finally took Ironized Yeast. Quickly gained 25 lbs. Skin is lovely, figure is perfect."
—Mrs. W. Hornbeck.

"Skinny" weak men and women are amazed at gain of 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks. Ugly hollows vanish. Bony limbs round out. Sallow, blemished skin gets clear and rosy like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation disappear overnight. Sound sleep, new pep quick.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

Don't go around "skinny," ugly, unattractive. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. Money back from manufacturer if not delighted.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

Eaton Thinks It Best for Anne That She Quit

CHAPTER XXV.

After a moment Anne told her sister the story of the rumors. "I'll resign, of course," she ended wearily. "Jim's right. It's the only thing to do. The only way I can protect him."

"He's a man" Kathleen told her scornfully, and her eyes flamed—she'd acquired a poor opinion of most men lately. "Why should you worry about him? He'll come out all right. It's not fair that you should lose your job just because Eaton and his wife disagree. Talk about an innocent bystander!"

"You don't understand," Anne told her patiently. "I've always protected him—that sounds crazy, but it's part of a good secretary's job. Well this is the last thing I can do for him. Besides," she added with a bitter honesty, "it had to come sooner or later. I had to make the break. I've shilly-shallied long enough. In this way I'm forced to do it."

"I see. Well it's your own funeral," Kathleen commented with calculated callousness. She looked anxiously at her sister. "And you look just about ready for flowers and the silver handles. But Anne," she went on, "you can't write Mr. Eaton and tell him you're leaving for no good reason. You owe it to yourself to tell him the truth."

"I know it," Anne answered. "And I owe it to him too. But can't you realize the whole situation, Kathleen—the agonizing embarrassment of it?"

"I do. It's funny," Kathleen remarked thoughtfully, "how quick and clever you are at straightening out other people's difficulties for them, but when it comes to your own you go all to pieces. You've given so much to that darned office of yours, you've nothing over for yourself, Anne."

"I suppose so," Anne murmured.

After a moment Kathleen said shuddering: "Dolly Davis! I saw it in the paper, Anne. It was too awful!"

"Yes."

"We haven't talked about—George," Kathleen told her. "I've never told you how grateful I am. At first, I almost hated you for interfering. I don't know what happened to me, why I went off my head like that. The newness of everything, the excitement. Of course, I knew that a lot of rotten stuff went on in that crowd.

Returns to Office

"I can't explain. I'd use all their catchwords and phrases as if I were playing some sort of part. But after you talked to me and George pulled out, and I got over it—the infatuation and the hurt vanity—I began to see things straight. I guess I've got my balance now."

"I'm so grateful," she told her sister again. "You saw me through that bad time, just as if I'd had some illness and you were taking care of me. I don't suppose," she ended wistfully, "I can do much for you now, but I'd like to."

Anne leaned over to her sister, kissed the flushed cheek. "You have helped me," she told her. "You've pointed out to me where I was wrong, where I was cowardly, and what I must do."

The next morning she went back to the office. Opening her door gave her a curious sensation. She had been so sure the day before that when she shut it she had closed it for the last time.

She was unable to see Lawrence Eaton alone until late afternoon. She was with him, of course, in the daily progress of her routine duties. But not until after 4 was she able to go in and ask if she could talk to him for a little while "on a personal matter."

Explains to Eaton

When they'd first met that morning Eaton had asked her how she was, if everything was all right. Now he said, meeting her grave eyes:

"You weren't telling me the truth this morning, were you? What's the matter and how may I help?"

Anne sat down in her chair and leaned her elbow on one broad arm. "I didn't tell you the truth yesterday, either," she answered quietly. "But I shall now. Mr. Eaton, my brother came to me yesterday—he's a feature writer on the Daily Star—and told me that the newspapers have found out that Mrs. Eaton is in Reno."

"I thought I'd put a stop to their speculations," Eaton said. "I kicked one bright lad out of the apartment lobby the other day—or practically kicked him out."

"That wasn't very wise," Anne told him frankly, "because they went to work and found—me."

"You?"

"Jim was sent out on the story—you can imagine the sort of thing they wanted: secretary, employer, employer's wife. They could build up their story on the flimsiest sort of evidence. The editor had no idea Jim was my brother. Jim's been to him since and told him that I'm leaving the agency, that I sent in my resignation some time ago. It was the only way to stop it."

Eaton said furiously: "I'll not have you hounded out of here! I'll not lose you through any trickery of the press!"

"But you must," she told him, "and I must go. You can't afford was just being decent about it."

"Look here," Eaton said quickly. "We've been good friends, you and I. No one in the world, not even my wife, my former wife—he corrected himself carefully—knows me as well as you do. I've not had to camouflage with you. I've taken as this knowledge more or less for granted. Just as I've taken your hard work in my interests, your diplomacy and your loyalty."

Well I am remembering these things now. I'm taking them for granted no longer. I wish I'd told you about Linda's move before this. But for a time my pride was involved. I'd failed as a husband. That hurts like the devil. Linda was not happy with me. I wasn't giving her what she needed, what she wanted: companionship and—and love."

Eaton Thinks of Anne

"We'd grown away from each other. And it was too late to return, even if I were willing to give up my work and start over again. And I was not willing. She was hottest with me. She asked me to let her go. She knew that she was no more necessary to me than I was to her."

"I wish," he said again, "that I'd told you. Perhaps we might have foreseen this, though I don't see how we could. And I want to tell you one thing. I'm perfectly willing to stand anything that may come of this mess, but I'm not willing to stand losing you, Anne. You—you are far too necessary to me."

She said, trying womanlike, to let him convince her: "I shouldn't let you do it. Yet, if you are willing, I am, too."

He looked at her, arrested, realizing her side of it. He could stand it; he was a man—to the devil with the publicity and unpleasantness! Linda? Linda would be safe with Jamieson before long. It wouldn't matter to her. But Anne would bear the real brunt.

"I've been a fool," he told her. "And selfish—my Lord, how selfish. I was thinking of Lawrence Eaton and feeling rather set up about it, feeling I was the devil of a good fellow to be willing to see this through in order to hold your job for you. And yet I wasn't thinking of your job at all, except as it affects me. I wasn't thinking of you. You'll have to go, Anne. You have your people to think of—and yourself."

"My people won't believe anything against me," Anne argued. "If you say the word, I'll stay."

"I can take chances for myself; I won't take them for you," he told her. "You can't afford to have a newspaper story connected with you. I accept your resignation," he ended, low. "You've been the best secretary and the best friend a man could wish for."

She went into her office almost blind with tears.

Way to Reduce Chin

To presto-change a double chin into a single one—anoint with a heavy cream, pick up the flesh between thumb and first finger and roll firmly. Follow with an ice rub and then dab on an astringent; witch hazel serves excellently as a skin tightener, especially if applied very cold.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

A man in this state has gone with a girl for eight years, and monopolized her company, but he never speaks of marriage except sarcastically. So she has about decided that she should "let go." The girl gets a good salary, has bought her own little home, on time, and she says she begins to think she's only a companion in that home. Little chance to get the right-year man, so she wonders if it wouldn't be wise to quit.

I should say it would!

But I'd quit so cold that he would feel the shock.

She calls herself a dumbbell for hanging on so long.

"Well, I wouldn't go that far, because as long as they stick around I suppose you have reason to think they will propose. But I think it's a great mistake to take love for granted. Any hint of marriage he made eight years ago is outlawed by now.

Men are not afraid to ask girls to marry them if they want to marry. The most timid man in the world gets bold when he wants to put that question. At least he summons enough courage to ask for her before someone else gets her.

If a man stands to lose you and then is indifferent, there isn't anything you can do about it. If he doesn't think he will lose you and still stays off the subject of marriage, he is sidestepping responsibility. He is thoroughly selfish.

This girl is all right because her sense of humor is intact. She will get another beau, and then maybe the "steady company" will find out what he lost. She ends her letter by saying: "I'm afraid I'm hanging on the wrong gate. Don't you think so?"

You might shock him by walking out on him. But don't do it tearfully. Do it with apparent (if artificial) joy. Men hate snivelers. More men are lost that way than any other. But you wouldn't snivel, I can tell by your letter.

I know it's difficult to find a new beau when everyone in your town has seen him on your door step for eight years.

Perhaps he talks against marriage to hear what you will say. Perhaps you don't say anything. Why don't you tell him to call only semi-occasionally, or not at all? Why not tell him you'd like to know a few other men, in as much as he never expects to marry and you haven't any such ideas of life?

If not, why not?

Madge Discloses Her Plan to Dicky

I did not keep Dicky waiting an instant when he asked me what his part was in my scheme for keeping Junior and Roderick busy during the holiday vacation the Harrison boys were to spend with us. I had evolved my plan during the minutes that I had waited while our two absurd little "gamecocks" as Dicky had dubbed them were revolving their sins in their minds and were preparing to do penance for them.

"You have a very big part in the plans," I told him promptly. "So has Father. But I want to get your approval first before approaching him."

"Yes, you're very wise there," my husband told me soberly but with mischievous eyes. "Your father is so stern, so adamant especially to any requests of yours, that I do not wonder you want my moral support in tackling him. But I fear nobody, not even my father-in-law, I'll travel ahead, brave his wrath and try to get the scepter held out to you."

The only response I made to this rodomontade was to wrinkle my nose at him derisively, for he knows as well as I how eagerly indulgent my father is to any request of mine.

"I warn you," I went on as if he had not spoken, "that it will take some of your money and more of your time before Christmas. Of course I'm going to pay part of it, and I'll be able to save you a lot of time, too, but——"

"I'll accept the time," Dicky said grinning, though there was a decisive note in his voice, "but the money—nothing doing. I'm still able to provide a Christmas surprise for my son and my nephews without taking your money, unless, of course, you're planning to build a Yale Bowl for their future pugilistic contests."

There was an unpleasant and bitter note in his voice as he uttered the phrase "your money," which rankled even though he quickly camouflaged it by his nonsensical guess as to my plan. I knew so well what the reason was for his rancor. It was the same feeling which had led him to resent almost openly Philip Veritzen's gifts to Junior following the child's fall from the tree. He could not bear to have any part of Junior's Christmas paid for by money which I had earned in Philip Veritzen's employ.

He had given me a way out, however, and with a light laugh which I flattered myself contained no betrayal that I had recognized his jealousy, I answered the latter part of his sentence.

"But something like that is just what I am planning. You know when father put in the new heating plant here and built in a billiard room in the basement, there was a large space left unfinished?"

Dicky's eyes opened wide.

"Well! I'll be—saved by grace," he exclaimed. "You are flying high."

"Not so high but what I can reach the ground again," I told him smiling. "But I do want that space finished off before Christmas—the cement floor is already there—and one of the chimneys goes down there so that a primitive fireplace won't be much to manage.

"I want housing for several activities there," I continued. "You know it really is an immense space—for which we can thank the original owners of this rambling old house."

"Yes, they either must have been smugglers or stored away many barrels of liquor in their time," he commented.

"First," I went on, ignoring his interruption, "I want a corner with real work benches and real tools, four of them, two larger than the others, but no more complete."

"You're evidently planning to include Hank and Bill in this scheme for making idle hands safe from Satan," Dicky gibed.

"Yes, I am," I returned, "and they sorely need something to do. I overheard them planning to 'get their guns' tomorrow and go hunting."

"The little devils!" he exclaimed. "Where in the world did they get guns? I wonder if they're real ones or air rifles. Harriet would never stand for their having shotguns. But perhaps Edwin slipped them to the boys. He's a victim of suppressed ruffianism, old Ned. Harriet's a wonderful wife and if she hadn't cushioned the corners for him all these years in the way she has, he'd never have the place in the surgical world he has. But she hasn't much love for the accomplishments of life in the great open spaces where men are men and all the rest of it."

Something clicked in my brain and I remembered my resolute denial of Dicky's plan to get Junior an air rifle. Was I also enduring a "suppressioned ruffianism" in my husband?

I made a sudden resolve, uttered it quickly before I should repent of it.

"I don't know why they shouldn't go hunting," I said, "if you'll go along and look after them. But I'd like to have them put it off until after Christmas, for I think Junior is old enough now to have an air rifle, and if Roderick hasn't one, we could get one for him also for Christmas."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dictated by the Time

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me if it is good form to ask guests to remove their wraps when calling for you to attend a theater or other social affair? A. M. D.

This depends on the time and the amount of time there is to chat before leaving for the theater. If there is time, ask your guests to remove their wraps.

A Personal Note of Thanks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have a confirmation party for my son and I would like to know how to word a note of thanks for the many gifts he has received.

2. Should my son sign this note of appreciation, or should I?

3. Would the engraved card, with envelope to match, be proper? S. M.

1—Your son should write these notes and should tell each kind giver-of-gifts of his appreciation, first of their kind thought, and, second, of his thanks for the gift. In writing such a letter, we should not try to make it as short as possible, but as articulate as possible. We should make the giver convinced that we have a "heart in the right place," and that we are grateful for such friendliness.

2—Your son should write the notes.

3—No. A purple correspondence card would not be at all appropriate for this purpose. To begin with, your son should have more "male" letter-paper, plain white or light gray, of the double-sheeted variety, and of generous size.

MOTHER KNEW WHAT TO DO

Indiana, Pa., Woman Was Helped at Once.

"When people know what World's Tonic will do for those who suffer as I did, it will be the most popular medicine in the country," said Mrs. Nora Lydick, of Indiana, Pa., to the World's Tonic man. She said she had suffered for years from nerves, at least that is what everyone said it was. The least exertion would worry her, and she tired so easily that doing her housework was a task from which she shrank every morning. At times, she said, she was so dizzy she had to grasp a chair or a table to stand up and she lost in weight so steadily that she was only a shadow of her former self. These troubles she ascribed to her stomach, originally. People said she had nervous indigestion. Her sleep was fitful and broken sometimes by bad dreams. Often she would lie awake for a long time before rest finally came.

"Nothing tasted just right. Food did not seem to agree with me, even when it was the simplest. As a result, I seemed to gain nothing from what I ate, and I was literally starving in the midst of plenty. Of late I noticed that exertion affected my heart and my breathing so that I became really alarmed.

"My relief came from an unexpected source. My mother came to see me, and when I stood at the side of a table gasping, my mother ran to my own room and came back with a bottle of World's Tonic. Many elderly people take World's Tonic for strength. My mother gave me a dose of this medicine and made me lie down. For more than a day I lay there, my mother giving me the medicine regularly, almost against my will. But it gave relief from some of my distresses and I decided to take a bottle of it. The rest of the story is just like it has happened in thousands of cases right in this state. One by one the unpleasant symptoms disappeared and the evidences of health appeared, so that by the time I had taken the recommended course in World's Tonic I felt as well as ever. Now I feel like recommending this medicine to every one I see who is not up to the full measure of health. You might be the next one to be restored."

World's Tonic can be obtained at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or at any other first class drug store. (A-14)

Government Survey Shows Millions Suffering With NewFootDisease

According to a recent bulletin of the U. S. Public Health Service—it has been discovered that one-half the adults of U. S. at some time suffer with so-called ringworm of feet.

When this disease first attacks, a little cracking and scaling starts around and between the toes—later blisters develop which break and form a wet oozing surface which some folks can't heal for months.

To check this contagious epidemic, with all its intense itching, burning and distress, druggists everywhere are dispensing Moone's Emerald Oil—a powerfully penetrating and healing germicide.

Apply night and morning. The itching and burning immediately ceases and if, after two weeks, your feet aren't well again, your money cheerfully refunded.

"KONJOLA WHAT I NEEDED," SAYS THIS HAPPY MAN

Meadowlands Resident, 70, Finds Prompt Relief Through Use of New Medicine.

Age is no barrier to the powers of Konjola. Men and women in the seventies and eighties are eagerly offering their grateful endorsements of the merit of this super-compound. Konjola may also be given to the infant with speedy and thorough results. It is, in fact, a medicine for all the family. Compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs, Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, or heart-depressing chemicals. Its record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness, has made it the most talked-of medicine in America.

Consider the case of Mr. James Cunningham, Meadowlands, near Pittsburgh. Mr. Cunningham's experience is in common with that of thousands of other sufferers, many of them your friends and neighbors, who have found relief through the use of this great master medicine. See the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and learn all about Konjola. Now read the experience of Mr. Cunningham:

"Konjola is the medicine I should have had long ago. I am seventy years of age, and have lived in this section many years. I read of the good results an old friend was getting from Konjola and I began taking it. I had suffered for about two months with stomach trouble. I took a heavy cold from which I could not rid myself. Solid foods caused nausea and vomiting and I bloated terribly after meals. My system was badly weakened and rundown.

"Just a ten-day treatment of this wonderful medicine has proved that it is just the medicine my system needed. The gas and bloating have passed and now I can eat just about what I want. My health has been generally built up and strengthened. I have been recommending Konjola to many of my friends and customers. I think it is a wonderful tonic and strength-builder after a severe cold."

Although Konjola works more quickly and thoroughly, most cases require a systematic treatment over a period of from four to eight weeks. Ailments that have been months, and even years, in developing cannot be swept away as though by magic, but a few weeks' treatment will surprise you. Try Konjola today.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

When tempted to over-indulge

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

*In his famous book entitled "Foods For the Fat," Dr. Yorke-Davies gives this advice: "Any system for reducing fat will be of no avail if the patient persists in eating between meals." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Was Grandma Sweeter Girl Than Miss 1930?

Was she more sincere and modest? Less mercenary? More willing to marry a poor man?

And did grandpa stand a better chance of being happy with her than John Henry stands of being happy with Miss 1930?

Dave's answer to all these questions is a loud, resounding "yes."

In fact Dave's all of a fret and plenty sorry for himself over what a terrible creature the "modern" girl is. None of her for him, he yaps, giving us a dirty look. Selfish! Out for the money! Stuck on herself! That's his opinion of us girls.

We suspect that what's really eating Dave is that Miss 1930 has refused to be impressed by his charms . . . or ruled by his whims.

But here he is. Listen in on his static for yourselves. And if you don't hunt a few tasty brickbats after you do it, I'll miss my guess.

"Dear Miss Martin—

"Now about this Harriet, whose letter I've just read in your column. She sounds almost too good to be true . . . in this day of bold, selfish, reckless young women.

"Most of the girls nowadays are looking for some fellow with a lot of money. They step out with the deliberate idea of angling out some sap who'll give them a fling of drinking and dancing—and not one of them would think of marrying a poor man.

"They're all out for the money, every one of them. Why you can't talk for 15 minutes with a modern girl without her asking you how much you make and have you any bank account and what kind of a car do you drive. They won't make a home for you. They insist on working to put a lot of fancy clothes on their backs, and they drive a man crazy trying to keep up with their demands. They're always looking for a "heavy sugar date." They're brazen about it.

"You see, Sally, I'm a rather shy old man of 31, who doesn't take much stock in the girl of today. She doesn't appeal to me, and I don't trust her intentions.

"You talk of the old-fashioned garden and the hammock. Men were lucky and women were real in those days. But wouldn't the modern gin-swigging, gold-digging, cussing and smoking girl of today be entirely out of place in that lovely picture? She'd fit perfectly into the picture of a snappy ball room . . . with her feet on the rail in an adjacent private bar. Or maybe into a picture of Wall Street, maybe.

"Yes, I'm out of sympathy with Miss 1930.

"You said Harriet's trouble was in herself and suggested that she join the rest and go hunting using her femininity as a weapon and a lure. Well, all I've got to say is that if she does lack that 'what-it-takes' to make the modern girl, there's a ray of hope for her . . . and for this old world, after all.

She'll find a man some of these days who'll appreciate her in contrast to her gimmill sisters. She's lucky, and doesn't know it.

"If I knew Harriet I wouldn't be spending lonely hours in a lonely hotel room.

"Now honestly, what do you think of the modern girl, anyway? Don't you think I'm right about her? And don't you think there are mighty few Harriets?

"DAVE."

What do I think, Dave?

I think you're a fine case of "everybody's out of step but Jim."

You're so busy being snooty and criticising a few things you don't like in this age you found yourself born into that you haven't time to see anything but ugliness.

I'll admit, big boy, that Miss 1930 isn't perfect. But neither was Miss 1830 . . . or Miss 1890. No human being is perfect. And that applies to you, Dave, just as much as it applies to me, or to Mary Jane who works in your office.

Snap out of this high hat attitude of yours. Wipe off your chin and climb down out of your high chair and be your age! Just because girls do things a little differently from the way they did them when your grandfather was a boy, is no sign they're not just as good girls as grandmother was!

You think the terrible goings on of Miss 1930 have forced you to be a hermit. They haven't. What's forced you to be a hermit is your own swelled head!

Girls like dates, you say? Well, why not? Don't you like to be asked out? Certainly you do! Why blame girls for being human?

And let me tell you right now, that if you don't know any girls besides the ones you describe in your letter, you've certainly been moving in peculiar company.

There are thousands of "Harriets" right here in this town. Girls as fine and true and brave and generous as grandma ever dreamed of being. But you can't see them because they're quiet and unobtrusive looking, and your eye is only caught by the hot numbers. Look around you. Get rid of that peeve you're packing, and maybe there'll be "some home" for you!

Don't Neglect That Letter to Loved Ones, Is Fay King's Reminder

A FIVE-CENT STAMP WILL CARRY A LETTER TO SINGAPORE OR JAPAN
NEW STATIONARY IS A GREAT INCENTIVE FOR WRITING LETTERS
EVERYBODY WOULD LIKE TO GET A STACK OF LETTERS EVERY DAY!

By FAY KING

EVERYBODY likes to get letters.

With what hope we watch for the postman. With disappointment we see him pass.

In this day of telephone and telegraph, letter writing is much neglected. But the written word in a familiar hand is the dearest of all communications.

When one considers the happiness, comfort and peace of mind a letter can bring to the folks back home, no one should neglect writing to those who watch and wait.

Even to dear ones under the same roof, a note of love, admiration and appreciation should be written. For it is often much easier to write the words of praise, admiration, affection, and even apology, that we feel than to say them.

Don't fail to write home.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Children and Physical Defects

Examination of a million children of pre-school and school age in the City of New York reveals the fact that there are all too many children with one or more physical defects. Sooner or later, unless corrected, these troubles will grow greater and produce ill health and unhappiness for thousands of individuals.

DR. COPELAND

On the eighth annual school health-day, more than 1,000,000 children were observed for possible nutrition defects, defects of the eyes, ears, teeth and respiratory system. It is interesting to note that these examinations are to be speedily followed up with treatment, remedial measures and health education.

Teachers will make use of these records in their instruction in hygiene. They will have this survey as a basis for teaching their pupils rules of hygenic habits and behavior. That this is a splendid opportunity for hygienic and moral education among our young citizens there is no doubt and much good must result from it.

Appeals are being made to parents for co-operation with the health authorities in remedying the defects reported. Unless these are remedied the examination is useless. Parents should have their children treated for any physical defects whatsoever.

It has been found that 65 to 95 per cent of these million children have one or more physical defects. In four groups over 50 per cent had teeth defects. One-third had enlarged or diseased tonsils; 95 per cent had some degree of defects of vision; 10 to 35 per cent were suffering from adenoids, and 4 to 18 per cent were victims of malnutrition.

Just how much time people lose from gainful occupations through some of these disabling illnesses is hard to reckon. Recent surveys show that among 36,000,000 wage earners in the United States, at least 250,000,000 work days per year are lost. Among the 24,000,000 school children 170,000,000 days are lost during the school year. This takes into account only about half the population of the country, however.

Follow-up work by the board of health among these children will be carried out as speedily as possible under the medical inspectors. Every advantage given the growing child helps to give health, strength and bodily vigor. We cannot be too generous in giving to these future citizens the attention they need and deserve at our hands.

If you have forgotten to get the new tube of tooth paste and need a substitute, use equal parts of salt and baking soda, which combination makes an excellent make-shift tooth powder.

Brushing the teeth does more good than one realizes. It stimulates the blood streams in the gums, keeping them red and healthy. It removes chemical deposits left by sweets and starches, substances that build tartar and dig holes in dentine. Never fail to brush the teeth at night; that is the most important brushing of the day. Scrub the gums, use dental floss, and finish up with a mouth wash. Time well spent.

Salt and soda, mixed and added to water, make a refreshing foot bath when the little dogs have traveled over hot pavements and have gotten all tired and smarting. Talcum powder between the toes and over the soles often proves to be an insurance against discomfort. Light colored stockings, which allow the sun's rays to penetrate are recommended.

Singing in the bathtub or singing any place else is a good idea. It develops the chest. The lungs are like bellows. Fill them with air and they not only fill out, but they expand the surrounding muscles. Even those muscles that extend down into the abdomen feel the tension at pull. Deep breathing serves the same purpose. Women who are not shallow breathers, who pump oxygen into the very cells of their lungs, have color in their cheeks. They never have collar bones like shelves.

Horoscopes

Friday, July 4

An active, lively and generally fortunate and progressive day is forecast from the predominant stellar mutations. There should be much moving around, with pleasant as well as profitable activities with new contracts and affiliations under encouraging sway for those devoting the holiday to the attainment of the ambitions. It is an excellent time to push important affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to push forward to the goal of the highest ambitions during the year. New projects and plans, as well as the renewal of old contracts and agreements under more advantageous terms, are encouraged under prevailing auspicious planetary rulership, which bears an expanding influence in all directions.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many excellent qualities and capabilities making for distinguished success and position in life. It should aim for high goals.

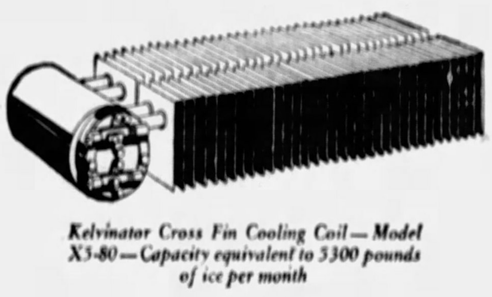
Saturday, July 5

An interesting and eventful day is the augury based on the ruling lunar and mutual aspects, especially for those in the employment of others or those proposing to negotiate with those in positions of importance or authority. It is a time for pushing for increase, honors or promotion, as elders will be kindly disposed. It is probable that there may be an element of secrecy or subtlety in agreements, but it is urged that funds be handled with every precaution. Also sign papers with care.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an interesting and eventful year, in which advancement, favors and honors may be expected from elders or those in positions of power and authority. Sign all papers with care and be discreet in handling all moneys.

A child born on this day should be clever, capable and popular and should be well favored by elders and persons in places of power and authority.

FOOD MERCHANTS TODAY PROTECT THEIR PERISHABLES with KELVINATOR ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION



Kelvinator Cross Fin Cooling Coil—Model X5-80—Capacity equivalent to 5300 pounds of ice per month

IN EVERY community throughout the country the better class of food retailers have turned to Kelvinator for reliable electric refrigeration. To them, the installation of Kelvinator refrigeration is merely sound business—a guarantee to their customers of fresh, wholesome foods, always free of taint or spoilage.

But Kelvinator is more than a builder of good will. It is one of the few investments a food retailer makes that repays its entire cost—often within a single year's time.

Kelvinator enables the grocer to handle an ever-increasing variety of fresh foods. It saves wasteful trimming of meats for the butcher. It keeps fruits and vegetables, cheese, butter, milk and eggs properly refrigerated and protected. And it reduces refrigeration costs fully two-thirds in the average store.

The saving that comes from lower refrigeration costs, plus the saving that comes from being able to make larger quantity purchases at consequent reductions, combine to make the installation of Kelvinator downright good business.

This Compact Cooling Unit Is Equal to 5300 Pounds of Ice per Month

Slipping this unique cross fin cooling coil (pioneered by Kelvinator) into your display case or cooler—connecting it to an efficient Kelvinator condensing unit—puts an end to your refrigeration problems.

No more worry about refrigeration failing over week-ends or on the hottest summer days. Wholly automatic in operation, it provides an unvarying cold that protects and preserves all perishables, and actually improves the flavor of meats.

Made in a wide variety of types and sizes, it can be quickly and inexpensively installed in your cabinets, coolers and display cases. Your nearest Kelvinator dealer will gladly make a free survey of your needs and will tell you how easily you can purchase Kelvinator on the attractive ReDisCo monthly budget plan. SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Decrease is Shut-Outs. Root and Pipgras Lead. Robins Back on Top.

Injury Halts Bambino. Three Straight Homers. America's Net Sweep.

ONLY 35 BLANKS PITCHED IN MAJORS

FURTHER EVIDENCE THAT they shot a little more of the old rabbit into the ball this year is offered by a falling-off in shut-out pitching. During last season in the major league, 114 games were played in which the beaten clubs failed to score, 60 in the American and 54 in the National. With the pennant campaign of 1930 practically half over, only 35 shut-outs have been pitched up to date in the two circuits, 19 in the American and 16 in the National. That's certainly some little distance below the 1929 average.

Charley Root

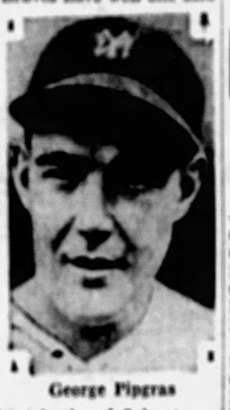
Only 11 pitchers in the Heydler loop and 17 in the junior body have succeeded in blanking opposing clubs. Of these 28 flingers, just five have accomplished the feat more than once, and only two have done it more than twice. Those with more than two shutouts to their credit, and the leaders of their respective leagues, are Charley Root, of the Cubs, and George Pipgras, of the Yankees. Each has turned in three games of that kind. Those who have whitewashed opponents twice are Larry French, of the Pirates, Benny Frey, of the Reds, and Jumbo Elliott, of the Robins.

THE YANKEES HOLD the distinction of being the only club in either league that has not yet been blanked. They are also the leaders on the other side of the book, having registered more shutouts than any other time. They have held their foemen scoreless five times. The Chicago American League club is the only one that has not shut out an opponent.

Next to the Yankees, the Cubs and Robins hold chief claim to shut-out honors, each having achieved four. The Red Sox, scoreless five times, have been scored oftener than any other team, followed by the Reds and Tigers, who have suffered four goose-egg defeats.

THE RECORD OF shutout games in the National League shows that the Cubs and Robins have won four and lost two, the Pirates have won two and lost one, the Giants and Braves have won one and lost one, the Cardinals have won one and lost two, the Phillies have won one and lost three, and the Reds have won two and lost four.

In the American League, the Yankees have won five and lost none, the Athletics have won three and lost two, the Senators have won three and lost three, the Indians and Browns have won two and lost two, the White Sox have won none and lost one, the Tigers have won two and lost four, and the Red Sox have won and lost five.



George Pipgras

ROOT'S THREE SHUTOUTS were pitched against the Phillies, Robins and Cardinals. The victims of Pipgras were the Senators, Tigers and Red Sox. French blanked the Reds and the Phillies, Frey the Cubs and the Braves, and Elliott the Pirates and Phillies. The pitchers with one shutout to their credit are Harry Seibold, Dazzy Vance, Adolfo Luque, Pat Malone, Bill Walker, Lester Sweetland and Sylvester Johnson in the National, and Milt Gaston, Danny MacFayden, Willie Hudlin, Clinton Brown, George Uhle, Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, Henry Johnson, Rube Walberg, Bob Grove, George Earnshaw, Alvin Crowder, Warren Collins, Ad Liska, Fred Marberry and Irving Hadley in the American.*

THE SUCCESS OF the Giants in downing the Cubs for the second time in a row while the Robins were breaking a losing streak of four games by taking the measure of Burleigh Grimes in St. Louis caused another shift at the head of the National League parade, Brooklyn going to the front again by a margin of a fraction of a point, .606061 to Chicago's .605634, though under the three-decimal system the Dodgers and Bruins appear tied at .606.

The Cubs are not to be considered as being on the verge of a slump just because they have slipped out of the leadership. For almost a month they have been the most consistent club in the National League, and the defeats of Tuesday and yesterday at New York's hands mark the first time since June 8 and 10, or in 21 straight games, that they have been beaten twice in succession. Yesterday's reverse was only their ninth in their last 33 games, a .727 gait.

The injury suffered by Babe Ruth yesterday will hardly keep him out of the game long enough to spoil the chance that exists for him to smash his own home run record, as it will be possible for him to stay on the shelf for a week and yet be ahead of his schedule.

Babe Ruth

On this date in 1927, the season in which he hung up his all-time record of 60 homers, the Bambino had only 26 to his credit as compared with 31 this year, and he did not make his thirty-first until July 24. He is therefore five homers and 21 days to the good, and probably will be back in time to retain some part of that advantage.

RUTH'S INJURY HALTS him temporarily in a march toward another remarkable record, that for the scoring of runs in a season. Even as it is, he has broken all previous marks by rolling up almost 100 runs before the Fourth of July, his total up to date being tallies in 69 games, or less than half of the schedule. At that rate he might have beaten even Billy Hamilton's all-time major league record of 196 runs in a season, established in 1894, and an early return to the game will make it still possible for him to surpass his own modern record of 177, which he set in 1921.*

BY MAKING THREE home runs in three consecutive times at bat yesterday, Carl Reynolds, White Sox outfielder, equaled the best record for sequential round-trip swatting that has been made in 36 years. Only one major league player ever beat that total of successive homers, the record holder being Bobby Lowe, who made four in four straight times at bat for the Boston Nationals in the afternoon game of Memorial Day in 1894.

Only three other players ever made three consecutive home runs in the big leagues in one day. They were Cap Anson in 1884, Ed Delehanty in 1896, and George Kelly in 1923. Four others made three homers in three consecutive times at bat, but not in one game, nor even in one day. They were Elmer Smith, of the Indians, and Babe Ruth, of the Yankees, in 1921, Clarence Walker, of the Athletics, in 1922, and Chuck Klein, of the Phillies in 1929. In each case, the homers were made in the last time at bat one day and in the first two times up the following day.

THE BIG WIMBLEDON tennis tournament will not close until Saturday, but as far as America's rivals in the British championship competition are concerned it's already over. All that is left for them

SERGT. SAMMY, IN HOSPITAL, RESTS EASY

CLEVELAND, July 3.—Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, who collapsed during the final round of his 12-round bout with Baby Joe Gans, California Negro, at Taylor Bowl here last night, and had to be taken to St. Alexis Hospital, where it was thought he was dying, rallied somewhat today and had a good chance to recover. He was resting easy.

Sammy Baker

Meanwhile X-ray pictures were ordered to determine of he is suffering from a fractured skull or a brain hemorrhage. He took a great deal of punishment about the head during the bout.

POPULAR BOXER HERE

Sergt. Sammy Baker, the boxer who was seriously injured in his bout with Baby Joe Gans in Cleveland last night, is a very popular performer in the Pittsburgh district. He has boxed Jack Zivic, Cuddy DeMarco, Joe Trippe, twice and Vincent Hambright here and always has shown to excellent advantage. He is a counter puncher with a good knockout record. His two bouts with Trippe, at Motor Square Garden, during the past season, were punching classics that the fans still talk about.

BILL TILDEN, PARTNER LOSE

WIMBLEDON, England, July 3.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, French Davis Cup doubles team, reached the semi-final round in the British tennis championships today by defeating Bill Tilden and his Dutch partner, Hans Timmer, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Cochet and Brugnon made a far superior combination to that of the lanky American and his Dutch partner, and although the latter showed occasional flashes of brilliance, they could not compete with the machine-like cooperation of the French pair.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan gained almost a complete monopoly of the women's finals by defeating Mme. Henrotin and Mlle. Jeanne Sigart, of Bilgium, 6-2, 6-0, in the semi-finals of the doubles.

Both Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan previously had won their way into the finals of the singles matches.

The American team of Wilmer Allison and Miss Edith Cross was defeated in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles by Jack Crawford, of Australia, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of America. The score was 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Neither Allison nor Crawford put up spectacular showings, the women bearing the brunt of the play. Miss Cross put up a great struggle, but Miss Ryan's tremendous service was the deciding factor.

Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, youthful German champion who collapsed in her match with Miss Ryan yesterday after spraining her ankle, hoped to be able to play today in the mixed doubles as partner of Tilden against the British team of Crole-Rees and Miss Phyllis Mudford. Fraulein Aussem held out hopes until noon, when the condition of her injured ankle forced her to retire.

The French met with a reverse in a second quarter-final doubles match, Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus being eliminated by the veteran English combination of J. Colin Gregory and Ian G. Collins, 9-7, 6-3, 6-2.

JONES TO SEEK NEW LAURELS

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP.)—Flushed with a stirring welcome celebrating his dual victory abroad, Bobby Jones today turned his face westward, seeking new golf worlds to conquer.

The modest lawyer and bank director of Atlanta, Ga., stepped off the liner Europa yesterday to be accorded a reception befitting the first American to win both the British amateur and open championships.

Above the din of shrieking sirens, popping firecrackers and the cheers of thousands, Bobby managed to say that he had no plans for retirement from competitive golf; that he had given no thought to winning all four major championships this year, which include the American open and amateur, yet to be played; that he did not leave his bag of famous clubs behind in England, and that luck played a large part in his triumphs at St. Andrews and Hoylake.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: LAKE TAHOE, THE LAKE OF MYSTERY—Lake Tahoe in California, the mystery lake of the sky, is surrounded by snow-clad mountain peaks, yet its clear, ice-cold water never freezes. An object on its bottom is said to be distinctly visible at a depth of 120 or more feet. Its great depth (soundings have been made to a depth of 1645 feet in spots) and its volcanic origin, dating back to the Tetiary Period of our globe, probably account for the many curious physical phenomena it offers. The Pirates and Braves are due to wind up their rather lethargic series this afternoon. Three games already have been run off and the home club, owing to a brand of minor-league play, has been defeated twice; moreover, the locals have been smeared six times in nine jousts with the Tribe so far this season.

The colorful Cubs, champions of the league, will be the attraction in the Independence Day games tomorrow morning and afternoon.

Glenn Spencer, the Binghamton youth who stopped the Phillies so effectively last Saturday, is the home slab selection for this afternoon. Skipper Bill McKechnie of the enemy forces has Fred Frankhouse and Tom Zachary ready.

BRAVES ON TOP

The Braves are back in fifth place again on top of their second triumph in the series yesterday, 6-4. The Pirates were a step ahead of the Boston boys when the latter came to town and there has been a see-saw act in effect since the series began. The Pirates can displace the foe by winning today, but if they cop they will have to be smarter and steadier than they were yesterday.

The coming of the Bruins is sure to pep up this around town in a baseball way. Marse Joe and his boys have been doing big things on the diamond despite the loss of Pitcher Hal Carlson, who died several weeks ago, and Rogers Hornsby, who has been out with a broken ankle. The morning scrap will start at 10:30, play in the afternoon to begin at three o'clock.

The Braves were terribly loose on defense yesterday but they discounted their stumbling by intelligent action at the plate and on the bases to trim the Buccos in the third game of the current series. Harry Siebold was placed

UMPIRE REARDON — CATCHER HEMSLEY — RICHBOURG

When Shortstop Dick Bartell, of the Pirates, threw wild to the plate on Maranville's grounder in the fifth inning of the game with the Braves at Forbes Field yesterday, it was the turning point of the contest, for Richbourg scored standing up with the tieing run, the Braves made three more hits and two more runs in the inning and the contest was on ice. Hemsley made a dive for the thrown ball, as pictured, but had no chance to retrieve it

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 3.—Battling Gizzy, Donora lightweight, outpointed Dud Eades, hailing from Los Angeles, in the 10-round main bout at Foutts' Bowl here last night. Gizzy's aggressiveness earned him the decision, although his punches failed to shake or damage Eades.

NATS PRESS A'S FOR LEAD IN AMERICAN

ROBINS REGAIN FIRST PLACE IN NATIONAL

Associated Press.

Of 65 games played in their recent home stand the Eastern clubs of the American League won 46, leaving only 19 victories for the Western clubs.

Washington put the big spurt into the finish of the intersectional play yesterday moving into second place in the standings and bringing its total of victories for the home stand to 13 against three defeats by winning both games of a double-header from the St. Louis Browns 5 to 4 and 5 to 3. The first contest went 12 innings.

The double victory gave the Senators a game advantage over their rivals the Athletics and the Yankees, both of which dropped double bills. They are now a full game ahead of New York and only one and one-half games behind Philadelphia.

A'S STREAK BROKEN

The Athletics' five-game winning streak was broken when Detroit beat the champions, 6 to 5 behind the fine pitching of Earl Whitehill in the first game but they returned to claim Waite Hoyt for a 7-to-2 triumph in the second.

An injury to Babe Ruth and the slugging feats of Carl Reynolds shared the interest as the Yankees won the first game from Chicago, 5 to 1, as the Babe hit his thirty-first homer of the season, then took a 15-to-4 drubbing in the second. Reynolds equalled two records by hitting three home runs in successive times at bat and by driving in eight runs. Ruth made a great attempt to catch the second homer and only succeeded in entangling his hand in the wire guarding the bleachers and injuring it painfully.

Boston put on a fine late rally to take a single game from the sadly slipping Cleveland Indians 5 to 4.

ROBINS, GIANTS WIN

The National League pennant race became more complicated than ever as the New York Giants and Brooklyn Robins gave a great display of civic spirit before starting their own private fray. The Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 8 by putting on the better rally in the ninth inning while the Robins pulled out a 6-to-5 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals on the strength of Ray Phelps' pitching.

The result put Brooklyn in first place once more by the margin of less than half a percentage point, although another method of reckoning shows the Robins still a half game behind.

The Boston Braves also improved their position a bit, turning back Pittsburgh's threat to take fifth place, with a 6-to-4 triumph.

M.-A. TO PLAY SPLIT SEASON

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 3.—(AP.)—Club owners of the Mid-Atlantic League voted last night to open the second half of the league's split season on July 4, instead of on July 6, as first planned.

The move, it was understood, was taken to stimulate interest in the league race. Provision was made for counting games played July 4 and 5 in the first half season record for Jeannette, if such action would have any bearing on the first half championship race. Johnstown is now in the lead, with Jeannette three and one-half games behind with four games to play.

Yesterday, Wheeling walloped Johnstown at Johnstown, 11 to 1. Jachym limiting the Johnnies to seven scattered hits.

Cumberland defeated Clarksburg, 7 to 5, at Clarksburg, and at Charleroi the Governors nosed out Scottdale, 8 to 7. Jeannette crept closer to Johnstown by defeating Fairmont at Jeannette, 4 to 2.

A field of 14 star drivers, including the two who are making the leading fight for the A. A. A. championship this year may start in the 100-mile grind at the Bridgeville Speedway tomorrow afternoon.

Billy Arnold, winner at Indianapolis and Altoona and boasting a substantial lead in the point championship race, and Shorty Cantlon, both, will pilot cars here tomorrow. Arnold being behind the wheel of the Seal Fast Special of Harry Hartz, which he drove at Indianapolis and Altoona.

Other well-known pilots who will risk their necks include Russ Snowberger, of Philadelphia; Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis; Gene Haustein, Detroit; Whiz Sloan, Akron; Jimmy Gleason, Philadelphia, and Bill Lindau, of Pittsburgh.

The race is a regulation A. A. A. point championship event, and if Arnold is able to cop first honors he will sew up the 1930 title, which in 1929 was won by Lou Meyers.

YANKEE CREWS WIN ABROAD

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng., July 3. — (AP.) — Two United States crews won through to the third round of the Thames challenge cup in the Henley royal regatta today by defeating their British opponents.

Princeton University won over Clare College, Cambridge University, by six feet, making the mile and five-sixteenths in 7 minutes 49 seconds. Kent School for Boys, with a crew member average of 18 years, beat Lesbury Rowing Club by half a length in 7 minutes 54 seconds.

Tomorrow the two teams will celebrate Independence Day by racing each other.

The Argentine Rowing Club, regarded as one of the most serious invading contenders, was defeated by the Quintin eight this afternoon by a quarter-length. The time was 8 minutes 1 second.

Joe Wright, Jr., of the Argonaut Rowing Club, Canada, defeated J. Beresford, Jr., of the Thames Rowing Club, by one-half length in the second heat of the Diamond challenge sculls. Wright's time was 10 minutes flat.

Sharkey-Schmeling Bout Plans Blocked

NEW YORK, July 3.—(INS.)—Negotiations for a second Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling bout were at an end today and whether further efforts will be made to arrange the bout was held doubtful.

Frank J. Bruen, vice president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, announced that while Sharkey had signed, efforts to finally sign the bout were balked by demands of Joe Jacobs, manager of the German boxer, and Arthur Bulow, his former manager, who holds a 26 per cent interest in Schmeling.

Long's Sport Comment

now is the privilege of sitting around and watching American players fight it out for the titles.

Yesterday's results made victory for this country certain in both the men's and the women's division, for only United States entrants remain to play in the finals on Saturday—Bill Tilden and Wilmer Allison in the men's singles, and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the women's singles.

Wilmer Allison

MRS. MOODY looks like a sure winner in the latter feature, but the men's title is not likely to be decided without the hardest kind of a fight. By reason of his sensational victory over the supposedly invincible Henri Cochet, followed by a five-set triumph over Johnny Doeg, another American yesterday, Allison is the standout of the tournament, but there still are one or two easier things in tennis than beating Tilden. The 37-year-old star has had a big season on foreign courts and it is within the bounds of possibility that the youthful Allison may have to bow to the veteran in the final round. But no matter how Saturday's matches go, both the men's and women's Wimbledon titles are bound to come to America as the climax of the greatest week of tennis success this country has known in years. With Americans holding all four places in the final rounds of the two tennis divisions, four Americans finishing among the first five in the recent British open golf tournament, Bobby Jones winning both the British amateur and open golf tournaments, and George Von Elm capturing the French amateur golf title, your Uncle Samuel has had a pretty fair season abroad in these two sports.*

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE Madison Square Garden Corporation that negotiations for a return match between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey in New York in September are definitely off amounts only to official confirmation of what practically everybody knew in advance. The yarn that Schmeling would consent to meet Sharkey again at such an early date had never been taken seriously by fight followers. They couldn't imagine Joe Jacobs allowing the German to risk his gift title within three months against a man at whose hands he could hardly hope to escape a beating.

In short, they had felt sure that Jacobs was only stalling until Schmeling could hit the high seas for home, and the only question had been as to what obstacle he would eventually bring up to provide a way out. The anticipated obstacle developed when Jacobs demanded that Max be released from all claims that Arthur Bulow, his former manager, might have to any part of his previous earnings. The general opinion is that Jacobs never had any intention of letting Schmeling throw away his title before the two have made every dollar possible out of it. Perhaps he's not to be blamed for that, but why all the bluffing that didn't fool anybody? It's a pretty safe guess that Schmeling's next fight will take place in Germany against an opponent no more dangerous than Phil Scott. A quick return match between Schmeling and Sharkey would not have drawn any record-breaking gate anyhow. The big card now will be a fight in which Primo Carnera is one of the principals.

NIGHT GAME IN EAST

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 3.—(AP.)—Beneath a 100,000,000 candle power battery of floodlights tonight the International League Bisons clash with the Montreal Royals here tonight in the first night baseball game in the East.

SPENCER READY FOR BRAVES

in many a jam yesterday by ground balls not fielded by the infield, but the clever pitcher was so effective in pinches that an even dozen Buccos were deserted on the paths. In other words, the Freebooters left the ball game on the bases.

BRAME HIT HARD

Ervin Brame was not in his regular form for the Pirates, but the ailing pitcher tried to make up for his lack of stuff by featuring on the offense. Ervin scored three times, but the rest of his pals collectively could get only one more marker over. An error by Dick Bartell in the fifth opened the way for three enemy tallies, from which the Pirates could not recover. Dick threw wide of the plate in trying to cut down Lance Richbourg.

Seibold and Walter Maranville were struck on the throwing hands with batted balls during the afternoon, but both remained in the battle. In the third a smoking drive off Fred Brickell's bat nicked the Brave pitcher and for a time it was felt he would have to retire, but Harry rallied and waged a winning fight. Maranville was hit on his right thumb by a grounder off Traynor's bat in the fourth. The veteran received first aid treatment and also stayed in the contest.

BARRY YOUNGEST

The youngest golfer who ever won the British amateur championship was A. B. Harry, who defeated Ormund Scott for the title in 1905, when he was scarcely 20 years old.

Brooklyn Tests Babe Herman's Lineup Idea

ST. LOUIS, July 3.—(AP.)—Babe Herman and not Wilbert Robinson is responsible for the revamped batting order the Robins used yesterday.

The Robins were talking baseball on the bench.

"I don't think our batting order is so hot," suggested Herman.

"Well, you know so much, how would you arrange it?" Robinson retorted.

Herman wrote out his idea of a batting order. Robinson thought well enough of it to give it a trial.

Inasmuch as the Robins broke a four-game losing streak, every one was happy about it.

CLUBS STAGE CADDIE TESTS TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Featured by the scoring of a hole in 1 by the medalist, the qualifying round for the third annual William Randolph Hearst Trophy, Western Pennsylvania Junior Amateur Tournament, to be staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, next Monday, was held at Schenley Park this morning under the direction of Caddie-master Andy Petrulis. Anthony (Tony) Onorretta, 17, of 6416 Apple avenue, tallied an ace on the 175-yard fifteenth hole to score a 68 to lead the field.

He was out in 38 and home, with his ace, in 30. Other qualifiers on the first team were: Andy Kosen, 17, 34-38—72; Steve Slivka, 16, 39-35—74; Pete Halahan, 17, 37-37—74. The other four who will play individually are: John Medved, 17, 38-37—75; Frank Teperner, 14, 36-40—76; Joseph Sciarretti, 16, 42-43—85 and James Sciarretti, 14, 47-45—92. Onorretta's card:

Out	4	4	4	3	3	4	5	5	—36
In	5	4	4	3	3	4	5	4	—37—68

STANTON LADS READY

Joseph McAsee, aged 17, won the medal with a 36 as the Stanton Heights caddies stepped into line. R. Clay, J. Brookey and Dave Wilson will play with McAsee as members of the Stanton team, they scoring 37, 38 and 39, respectively.

Those who qualified to participate in the individual competition only and their scores: J. Mallery, 39; Earl Cralle, 40; A. Burley, 40; Paul Cralle, 41.

Caddiemaster James Carroll and William Stoker, his assistant, conducted the test, and Fred Baroni, Stanton pro, gave a fine club to each caddie who qualified for the team.

William DiNardo and Camille Ross, each 15, tied for medalist honors with 84 each in the qualifying test at Nemacolin. Steve Mihalek scored an 86 and Joseph Shemloss an 87 to capture the other two places on the team.

Qualifiers for the individual play and their scores were: George Abbott, 88; John Damish, 89; Joe Malik, 89; Joe Yemiolo, 89.

Four other clubs entered the fold today—the Ambridge, Butler, Thornburg and Greensburg Country Clubs.

THORNBURG IN

At Thornburg, with Caddiemaster Al Miller directing affairs, the following boys qualified: Sam Musico, 16, of East Carnegie, who attends Langley High; Dave Trent, 17, of Idlewood, Crawford Trent, 16, of Idlewood, and Charles Montgomery, 17, of Crafton, the latter three attending Crafton High.

Caddie-Master Al Gallagher, at the Butler Country Club, is sending Richard Warnick, 15; John Mahoney, 17; Bus Donohoe, 17, and Richard Barry, 17, as that club's team, while William J. Rockenstein, 17, Jr., one of the club's star amateurs, also has entered.

Caddie-master Joe Constanino will have Joe Mazur, 14; Mike Winiarcz, 14; George Novak, 15; Joe Palmer, 14; Frank Gliska, 14; J. Makowski, 14; Mack Pruszenski, 16, and William Vladuchick, 15, in from the Ambridge Country Club.

CHAMPION BACK

And from the club that gave to the second annual Sun-Telegraph junior tourney its champion, the Greensburg Country Club, Caddie-master Wayne Tobias is sending Perry Del Vecchio's brother, Joe Del Vecchio, 16; James Snyder, 16; the champion himself, Joe Stevenson, 15; John Vargo, 17; Wagner Appleby, 14; Charles Faist, 17 and Carl Mear, 17.

Clubs within 20 miles of Pittsburgh that have not qualified their teams by tomorrow will not be eligible to do so. Clubs of greater distances from the city preliminary qualifying is not necessary.

PAIRINGS OUT SUNDAY

The pairings and starting times will be announced in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, so if you are an individual entry or a member of a team entered, please watch carefully for your name and starting time and be ready at the tee Monday when your name is called. In the event you sent in an entry and your name does not appear in the pairings, it is imperative you consult with the Golf Tournament Director, bringing with you substantial proof of your age and amateur eligibility.

Yesterday Caddie-Master Richardson at the St. Clair Country Club, Caddie-Master Joe Connor, of the Chartiers Heights Country Club, and Caddie-Master Stanley Curry, of the Fox Chapel Golf Club, qualified their caddies for the tournament.

BUCS FARM BRADLEY

Jimmy Bradley, promising local southpaw, who gained fame by blanking the Homestead Grays, has been farmed out to the Wichita club of the Western League by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

BILLY ARNOLD TO PRESENT TROPHY

The feature attraction at the Bridgeville dog speedway tonight is the Pittsburgher Hotel cup event. Carded as the ninth race on the program, it brings together some of the topnotch favorites and two new arrivals which showed rare form in their first start. The new ones are Vic Gay and Red Mark, the former running third in a sprint affair Tuesday night.

Billy Arnold, winner of the Indianapolis and Altoona Speedway auto races, who will be one of the drivers in the 100-mile grind at the Bridgeville Speedway tomorrow, will present the Hotel Pittsburgher cup to the owner of the winning dog, tonight.

Members of the New Kensington Post, No. 340, American Legion, will climax the Fourth of July celebration by attending the races at the New Kensington Kennel Club tomorrow evening. This has been designated as American Legion night and every post in the district has been invited to attend as guests of the New Kensington post.

RODGERS BEATS M'COY

JACKIE FLOORS, CAN'T STOP VETERAN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Little, old, bald-headed Johnny McCoy, ringwise veteran of Buffalo, N. Y., got up off the floor after being floored for a count of nine by Jackie Rodgers' first punch of the fight, a left hook high on the forehead, and came on to finish the 10 rounds on his feet and with the crowd cheering him as the victor although he really was decisively outscored in the main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, last night.

It was a bad fight, the sort of a bout a cagy boxer of the McCoy type invariably makes against a puncher. Throughout, McCoy was concentrating on keeping Rodgers from doing his stuff by tapping him off balance and then trying him up in the clinches. And Rodgers was more sluggish than usual. Perhaps it was just as well Jackie wasn't in there with Johnny Datto, the hard-hitting Filipino, of Cleveland, for whom McCoy was subbing.

JACKIE FORCES FIGHT

Rodgers kept forcing the fight all of the way and occasionally he managed to reach his foe with his rib-roasting rights to the side of the body and got over some lefts and rights to the head, but with the exception of that first punch, he wasn't able to connect with his usual force and power. He had McCoy dog-tired and in there to stick during the last few rounds, only to see Johnny put on a Garrison finish in the last few seconds to win a few more plaudits from the fans.

Rodgers carried seven of the 10 rounds by large or small margins and never was in trouble aside from being made to look bad. He found himself outscored in the second, fourth and fifth rounds. The votes of the judges and the referee were unanimous in his favor. He scaled 125½ pounds against 122 for McCoy, who had beaten him in each of two previous meetings.

HARRIS BEATS WILLIAMS

Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., who looks like Gene Tunney, hit too hard for Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, and handily won the eight-round semi-final, a hot battle. Harris, who scaled only 165½ pounds against 174¾ for his opponent, and appeared fat at that, made a hit with his cool and effective exhibition of sharpshooting. Both judges agreed on him as the winner, while Referee Keally called it a draw. Williams won only one round, the first. Harris outpunching him in all of the others and having him out on his feet in the last round.

Eddie Speaks, of Louisville, 132, was too smart and had too good a right hand punch for Jack DeNeri, of the North Side, 129, and won all of the way in the second bout of six rounds, while Tony Marino, of Duquesne, brother of Tommy Ryan, former bantamweight, of McKeesport, who seconded him and also McCoy in the main bout, showed to good advantage in winning in his professional debut against Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, O., in the first six-rounder. He weighed 119¼ pounds and Ketchel 113.

Al Grayber and Joe Keally alternated as referees and also as judges, working with Frank Ferris. Chappy Couch and Tommy Grant were the timers and Ray Eberle did the announcing.

M'COY SURVIVES KNOCKDOWN

REFEREE AL GRAYBER — JACKIE RODGERS — JOHNNY M'COY

Rodgers knocked down McCoy with his first punch of their main bout at the Meyers Bowl last night, as pictured above, but McCoy took a count of nine on one knee and then arose and finished the 10 rounds, but lost the decision. His ring generalship enabled him to go the route.

VERONA WINS OVER ACES, 7-6

By TOM BIRKS

Homestead Aces' splurge in the West Penn League was ended last evening by Verona as the latter club nosed out the conquerors of Reliance Life by a score of 7 to 6.

In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, the Methodists nosed out Ingram by a score of 6 to 4. Immaculate Heart walloped Ingomar in the North Side Twilight circuit, 12 to 3.

The Homestead Grays, with Lefty Williams hurling shutout ball, defeated Glassport, 10-0. Williams pitched a one-hit game, Gormack's double being the only safe blow scored by the Glassport team.

J. L. Thomas tied the Dan Heeps, 5-5, in an independent tussle. Arnold won over Sharpsburg by the big score of 21 to 5, and the Americans defeated Raybestos, 9 to 5.

Y. M. H. A. and the Soho Board of Trade will meet in a title game for the Central League championship this evening at Moultrie Park. In the West Penn League, Homestead Aces clashes with Wilmerding, while the Rieck McJunkin nine tackles Mine Safety Appliance hitters in the Commercial and Industrial League.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, Edgewood meets Reliance Life at Pleasant Valley, Whitaker clashes with Universal, and the Verona team hooks up with the Jenkins' nine at Homestead.

JACKIE WILSON

'ACTION' BOUTS AT MILLVALE

Another "action" card of bouts is scheduled for tonight at Hickey Park, Millvale, with a double windup of two 10-round battles topping the bill.

Jackie Wilson, North Side middleweight, meets Young Saylor, of Charleroi, in the main bout, while Mickey Bolomen, of New Castle, and Lynn Jordan, of Akron, and formerly of Johnstown, also middleweights, are in the other 10-rounder.

In the two six-round bouts, Mose Butch, of Oakland, boxes Young Nanci, of Swissvale, and Dave McConnell, of the North Side, tangles with Hans Roberts, of Brookline. The first bout is carded for 8:45 o'clock.

Between Rounds

An amateur boxing show is scheduled for tonight at Greensburg, under the auspices of the American Legion post.

The Meyers Bowl main bouts are closed for the next three shows. Next Monday night, Buck McTiernan boxes Farmer Joe Cooper, on July 14, Willie Davies meets Black Bill again, and, on July 21, Tommy Crawley, of the South Side, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, who recently boxed at Waterbury, Conn., with Kaplan winning the decision, repeat their bout.

Gorilla Jones and Harry Mason box at the Lakeside Stadium, Canton, O., tonight.

The card has been completed for the Buck McTiernan-Farmer Joe Cooper show at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. Ray Newton, of Ohio, just back from Florida, meets Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, in the eight-round semi-final. Harry Spencer, of Washington, Pa., and Young Jack McVey, of Cleveland, are in the second bout, and Frankie Moran, of Homewood, meets Al Farone, of the West End, in the opener.

Legion Baseball Drawings Complete

Following are the drawings for the second round of the American Legion junior baseball tournament for the remainder of the week, as announced by Ben H. Giffen, athletic director of the Allegheny County committee:

Today—Edgewood vs. Midget Club, of Swissvale, at Edgewood Field, 7 p. m.; Tomorrow—Whitaker Club vs. S. J. Provy Club at Whitaker Field, 12:30 p. m.; F. H. Kirk Juniors vs. Heidelberg at Crafton High School field, 10 a. m.; Wilkinsburg vs. Elizabeth at Graham Field, Wilkinsburg, 2:30 p. m. and East McKeesport vs. Ondrey Club at Edgar Thomson Field, 6:30 p. m.

Saturday—Braddock vs. Maroon Club, at Union Switch and Signal grounds, Swissvale, 6 p. m.

BOWEN WINS, LOSES ABROAD

COLOGNE, Germany, July 3—(AP)—America's invading track team made an impressive showing in its first European appearance yesterday, winning five of the six events in which it competed.

The unexpected failure of Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech's star broad jumper, to win his specialty prevented the Americans from making a clean sweep. Hamm failed by one half inch to defeat Dobermann, of Germany, who leaped 7.22 meters or 23 feet, 8 11-64 inches. The Georgian cleared 7.21 meters or 23 feet 7 25-32 inches.

Bowen stepped the 400 meters in the fast time of 46 7-10 seconds while Anderson was caught in 14 6-10 seconds in the 100-meter hurdles.

Doubling in the 100 meter sprint Bowen ran second and Hamm third, the event going to the German Olympic athletic, Lammers, in 10.7 seconds.

Fight Results

At Macon Bowl, South Braddock—Jackie Rodgers defeated Johnny McCoy, 10 rounds; Harry Harris defeated Harry Williams, 8 rounds; Eddie Speaks defeated Jack DeNeri, 6 rounds; Tony Marino defeated Young Ketchel, 6 rounds.

At East Liverpool, O.—Sterling Gray defeated Ted Sachs, 10 rounds; Kenny Davis defeated Buddy Moore, 8 rounds; Jimmy Thomas defeated Tommy Sapolino, 8 rounds; Eddie Yarosz knocked out Billy Fiegal, 3 rounds.

At Cleveland—Baby Joe Gans won by technical knockout over Reginald Ward, Baker, 11 rounds.

At Chicago—Tuffy Griffiths defeated Johnny Risko, 10 rounds; Paul Swiderski defeated Frankie Shaver, Martin, 6 rounds; Dan Cargnelli knocked out George Perkins, 1 round.

At Logansville—Tiger Thomas defeated Johnny Roberts, 10 rounds; Billy Fennell knocked out Charles Fultz, 2 rounds; Joe Dice knocked out Joe Boyd, 3 rounds.

At New York—Kid Chocolate won by a technical knockout over Dominick Petrone, 6 rounds; Willie Sugar defeated Phil Ballard, 10 rounds; Valentin Loo knocked out Guillermo Wilson (catch), East Boxville and Frankie Fetterolf, 4 rounds.

At Newark—Jimmy Lavina defeated Abe Chaiet, Paterson, 10 rounds.

At Boston—James J. Braddock defeated Joe Monte, 10 rounds; Steve Carbon defeated Leroy Haley, 10 rounds; Billy Healy defeated Tom McCloskey, 8 rounds.

At Oakland, Cal.—William Dix knocked out Paul Drake, 3 rounds.

Tuffy Griffiths Gives Risko Bad Beating

CHICAGO, July 3—(AP)—Johnny Risko, spoiler of heavyweight championship hopes, probably has reached the conclusion that he cannot wreck the title aspirations of Tuffy Griffiths.

Griffiths, bounding back into the heavyweight spotlight with a vengeance, whipped the Cleveland baker boy in their 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night. Griffiths, outslugging and outroughing Risko, gave him an artistic pasting, winning nine of the 10 rounds.

Injury to Finger Forces Ruth Out

NEW YORK, July 3—Babe Ruth's drive to retain his laurels as home run king temporarily was stopped yesterday when he was forced out of the Yankee lineup when he injured his finger in attempting to snare the second of Reynolds' three home runs in the second game with the White Sox.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Look at what happened to Brooklyn and Cleveland on the road trips they finished up today. It disproves the old adage that Heaven will protect the traveling salesman. The Robins were squatting pretty when they packed their bags three weeks ago and Cleveland had a chance for the pennant. Now look at them. It shows that traveling may broaden a person, but it can flatten a baseball team. I see Babe Ruth doesn't expect to reach his old mark of 60 homers this year. I don't know what is going to stop him unless Babe expects to go blind after September 1 tending his necktie counter.

Sport Vignettes

Has it occurred to you that it was a foregone conclusion that we would come to night baseball? . . . Umpires always have been accused of being burglars and now they're working union hours. . . . The New York Athletic Commission seems to have hit on the sanest solution yet of the fouling problem with its edict that in the future the boxers will have to devise their own protective apparatus and fouls will not be recognized . . . Any man going down will be counted out . . . How will it work out? . . . If one boxer fouls, his opponent will foul him right back and the party of the first part may finish on the short end . . . After a while all of them will refrain from the practice, knowing they will have to finish the bouts or suffer knockout defeats . . . Coddling the ringmen never will get the boxing commissions anywhere . . . This col'm long has been dedicated to the idea of going back to fundamentals with regard to fouls . . . In the old days b. c. (before commissions) the referees counted out the foul claimers or made them take a rest and continue, always having in mind the interests of the fans . . . Making the boxers protect themselves has foul checks beaten a mile . . . Boxers take punches on the chin that would fell an ox without wincing or complaining, yet, because of the rules that have been in vogue recently, they have taken the easy way out on the slightest provocation when struck anywhere near the belt line, and perhaps 90 per cent of the claims have been the well-known bunk . . . In his first 67 games this season, Babe Ruth turned in 30 home runs, exactly half as many as he rolled up in his record-breaking season of 60 in 1927 and he had 10 games to go to the halfway mark in the season schedule . . . It does not take an expert mathematician to figure out that his chances of setting a new mark are rose-tinted. . . . In 1927, the Babe did not pole out No. 30 until July 12. This year he got it on June 30 . . . Josephine McKim, formerly of Homestead, now of Los Angeles, is being counted on to give Helene Madison, the sensation of Seattle, plenty of competition at 440, 880 yards and one mile in the National A. A. U. outdoor swimming championships which get under way today at Long Beach, Cal., to continue for four days . . . Did you, or did you not, notice that the men who claimed foul in the last four big heavyweight matches that ended unsatisfactorily all were foreigners, to wit: Phil Scott, of England, twice; Max Schmeling, of Germany, and Primo Carnera, of Italy? . . . When Sammy Mandell defends his world lightweight championship against Al Singer in New York, July 17, he will be risking that bauble for the fourth time since he won it from Rocky Kansas, in Chicago, in 1926 . . . His unsuccessful challengers have been Phil McGraw, Jimmy McLarnin and Tony Canzoneri . . . Singer is the toughest opposition he has been called upon to face, for Al is a clever, seasoned boxer with a punch . . . McLarnin was conceded a great chance against Sammy, but was subjected to a boxing lesson . . . Since then he has beaten Mandell, but he was boxing as a junior welterweight that time . . . . Is a 500-mile automobile grind hard on the drivers? . . . . I asked Billy Arnold, 23-year-old winner of the Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day classic, this yesterday when he arrived in town to get ready for the 100-mile race at Bridgeville tomorrow and his reply was a shrug of his powerful shoulders . . . . "Not particularly," he replied. "I danced all night until 5 o'clock the next morning after the Indianapolis race, and didn't notice any fatigue." . . . "Don't you do any special training for such a long race?" I next asked him . . . . "No," was the reply. "Most of that talk about training for a race is the bunk. I lost only three pounds in the 500 miles at Indianapolis, so the race can't be very wearing on a driver." . . . Billy looks anything but the part of an Indianapolis winner with his boyish face and seemingly small build. Yet his general appearance is deceiving, for he is sturdily put together and scales more than 180 pounds . . . . He says a long race is harder on a heavy driver than a light one . . . . "There's Shorty Cantlon, for instance," he said . . . . "He's smaller and lighter than I am. He finished second in the race, and I'll bet he didn't feel the strain as much as I did." . . . Cantlon also is among the entrants at Bridgeville tomorrow.—HARRY KECK.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question—According to the Rev. Dr. Barnard Iddings Bell, moderate drinking among college students is not sinful and should not be punished. Do you agree?

Benjamin Sachs

BENJAMIN SACHS, store manager, Beechview—I can't see that there's any harm in moderate drinking among college students or among any other people who are groped together. Why should moderation be a sin?

Mrs. Gentile

MRS. D. L. GENTILE, clerk, East End—I think moderate drinking is quite all right, for a girl as well as for a man. But, of course, it would hardly be acceptable if carried to excess.

Abe Malkin

ABE MALKIN, clerk, Oakland—Drinking, if done moderately, is not harmful at all, and it could hardly be called a sin. I approve of it as long as that one stipulation is obeyed.

Miss Prendergast

MISS MARY PRENDERGAST, saleswoman, Ingram—I agree with Dr. Bell. After all, doesn't one expect college students to drink a little? And if they do it moderately why worry?

Mike Brenner

MIKE BRENNER, salesman, Pittsburgh—I don't think there's any harm at all in drinking if one drinks in moderation. Lots of people don't know just what to call drinking in moderation, though.

Miss House

MISS HELEN HOUSE, saleswoman, South Side—If everyone knew when to stop drinking it wouldn't be a sin at all. It's the lack of good judgment that makes drinking as a rule objectionable.

The Wayne Murder Case

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Silas Wayne, eccentric millionaire, is mysteriously murdered in the presence of eight witnesses. In the act of reading his will to his heirs he crumples to his desk and a dagger is found stuck in his heart. Robert Dale, reporter on the Daily Journal, is assigned to the case. Dale learns that Dr. Bailey, attending Wayne's ward had a violent quarrel with the old man. The assigned will is found. It contains many motives for the crime. A mysterious warning notifies Gloria Dryden that she is to be the next victim. The will is read. Its terms give Sarah Boulter, a niece, and Miss Sheen, Wayne's housekeeper, apparent motives for the crime.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER IV.

"The next one mentioned is Gloria Dryden," said Wilfred Sands, breaking the silence. "The entire estate was to be left to her, except that if she married Robert Wayne she was to be entirely disinherited."

The ominous character of Silas Wayne's bequests was beginning to throw a pall over the entire gathering. The district attorney paused to refer to the document in his hand.

"'I do this,'" he read, "'because John Dryden, her father, stole from me what was rightfully mine. In return I now take something from his daughter; I take love from her and give her wealth, or let her choose love and become a pauper as I found her.'"

Gloria broke down and sobbed bitterly. There was no question that a man, passed out of life, was still the predominating force swaying that little gathering to a will that lived after death. Young Robert was trying to calm Gloria when he heard his name spoken.

"To Robert Wayne one dollar was to be bequeathed. There was to be one other bequest to him. I'll read that. 'And he is to have the Candor Diamond, which I have bought for that purpose. It is a gem of ill-omen and if Robert Wayne attempts to sell or give away this diamond it shall immediately become the inheritance of Gloria Dryden. I desire that its heritage of disaster remain with Robert Wayne in repayment of an act of his father, who was my brother.'"

"I knew what he had written," said young Robert bitterly. "He took delight in telling me, this afternoon, assuring me that he would see that I could never have Gloria, even after he was dead. I wasn't sorry for him even when I saw that dagger thrust into his heart."

"It seems almost as if that ill-omened diamond cast its shadow of disaster sooner than expected, doesn't it?" Robin Dale's suggestion, coming unexpectedly, caused a moment's silence. "Rather ironic, wasn't it? You knew you were going to inherit the stone, Mr. Wayne?"

"Yes, I did! What of it?"

"What would you think?"

"Do we have to answer him, sir? Who is he?" asked Robert sharply of the district attorney.

"Someone I have a great deal of confidence in. But I think I'll go on for the present. There is one other very important and unusual bequest."

Sands laid the document on the desk and picked up a bulky envelope.

"The last request is a brief one. The inheritance of Claude Wayne, in the words of the will, is the penitentiary. His uncle discovered that the young man had been defrauding him for some time and collected the evidence of guilt, which is in my hands."

It was evident now why Sergeant Jardin had been sent from headquarters.

"Captain Blake, place Claude Wayne under arrest!" ordered the district attorney. Of course, they discovered that Claude Wayne had not been in the gathering. Blake went across the hall to Claude's room, but it was empty. On the bed was a travelling bag fully packed.

Robin Dale paid little attention while the search was going on. He sauntered to the window in the library and gazed out with an abstracted air. Rain was still falling steadily. The window looked out toward the river. The dismal toot of a tug siren echoed over the water. On the Jersey side the blinking lights atop the Palisades were scarcely discernible. Dale shuddered even with the warmth of the room.

Motives. There were motives aplenty behind this tragedy. They led in every direction at every turn, uncovering some hitherto submerged factor in the straightly crossed lives of the Waynes. Dale reviewed them all as he gazed out into the murky night. Beyond all question there was not one of those who had been in Silas Wayne's study when he met his death who would not have preferred the tragedy to the signing of the will.

But there was still the unexplainable manner of his death. No one near enough to stab him; no dagger thrown; no contrivance in the desk and yet the tragic fact remained. Dale walked to the desk and stood for a long moment studying it. He reviewed the action in his mind, as it must have happened. Suddenly he paused in his thoughts, walked around the desk and sat in Silas Wayne's chair. His hands gripped the arms tightly. He became aware that there were people moving about in the room, hurrying to the door.

Capt. Blake's call for Wilfred Sands was so sharp that Dale heard it subconsciously. He arose and went quickly into the upper hall. Miss Sheen had remained in the library. Gloria and Sarah Boulter cried out in horror as the second tragedy unfolded itself.

The captain had opened a door to the closet under the flight of stairs leading to the attic. As he did the body of Claude Wayne swayed from within and crashed to the floor. There was a gag in his mouth and a heavy curtain cord wound tightly about his neck.

Captain Blake made a hurried examination.

"Dead! Strangled!"

The women turned away in terror.

"Take the ladies downstairs, please." Sands addressed Robert Wayne.

Captain Blake was trying to undo the cord about Claude's neck.

"Just a minute, captain. Won't do any good taking that off now. Let's take him into the library."

Dr. Bailey had gone in for Mrs. Sheen and hurried down the hallway with her, toward the stairs.

Dale was on his knees beside the body of Claude Wayne. He was peering intently at the noose. He looked up at Stephen Boulter.

"Say, give me a hand into the library."

Boulter lifted the shoulders and Dale the feet. They went into the library with their burden.

"Would you mind untying that noose now, Boulter!" asked Dale. Boulter deftly untied it.

"A sailor, aren't you?" asked Dale. Sands and Blake listened.

"I was. Why?"

"Only a sailor could tie and untie a knot like that."

CHAPTER V.

"I suppose you're tryin' to hint that me bein' a sailor did the tying. Well, you're crazy!"

Dale appeared to disregard Boulter's words. He turned to Wilfred Sands as though he suddenly remembered something.

"Now I understand what that warning note meant! 'You next!' This murder was already done and Miss Gloria is spotted as the next victim. Do you think you'd better tell Jardin to stick close to her?"

"That's not a bad thought, Dale." His next words were whispered to Captain Blake, who left the room.

"Come on, what've you got to say about me tying that knot?" asked Boulter almost belligerently.

"Say are you the only sailor in the world? All I said was that it took a sailor to tie and untie one like that."

"If you fellows wasn't so busy trying to figure hard ways to find out who killed the old man you'd have the right one locked up long ago."

"Whom do you suggest?" asked Sands.

"Suggest? I know. It couldn't be anybody else except that young Bob Wayne. I heard what went on this afternoon. The girl's room is right next to the one old Wayne put us in. Early this afternoon that fellow Claude comes into the room and starts makin' love to her. From what they said he must've been makin' a habit of it. Anyway, pretty soon I hear Bob Wayne go into the room. There was a terrible argument between the two lads. I heard Bob say that he'd kill Claude if he ever put a hand to the girl again. Claude then said something. I didn't catch, but it made the other youngster mad enough to kick Claude right out of the room. There was so much commotion that the old man heard it and came out of the library. Then him and Bob had a row. That's when he told Bob what he was going to get in his will. What he told the old man then was plenty. I guess he would've liked to mash it stronger only Gloria was present. Anyway, he did say that any man ought to be dead before he did a thing like that. The old man laughed with that crazy laugh of his and told the boy that he wouldn't have the girl even after he was dead.

"There's the whole thing—open an' shut like a log book. What could be plainer than that Bob Wayne kills the uncle first before he can sign that paper and then, to get even with his cousin, makes a complete job of it?"

"Sounds plausible, doesn't it, chief?" queried Dale.

Sands made no reply. Dale turned to Boulter again.

"That being the case tell us how Bob Wayne killed his uncle."

"Say you'll have to figure that out for yourself. I just give you the facts. You're detectives, you ought to know how it was done."

"Why not get Bob Wayne up here and question him, chief?"

Sands nodded. He remained in the library while Dale descended the stairs with Boulter. He returned with Robert Wayne and Captain Blake. Under questioning Robert Wayne confirmed everything that Boulter had told. In some instances he even went further as to detail, but none of it shed any more light on the subject than Boulter's recital had. Finally Robert was dismissed and Sands, Blake and Dale were left alone.

"How do you figure it, Captain?" asked Sands when they knew Wayne was out of earshot.

"Well, there was a lot of truth to Boulter's story, and you see young Wayne confirmed it in every detail. He certainly had plenty of reason to get rid of the old man. Having gone that far he probably figured he might just as well get his revenge on Claude Wayne."

"But what about the warning Gloria received. He surely wouldn't attempt to harm her."

"Nothing's happened to her, has it? He might have figured it was a clever way to divert suspicion from him."

"Dale, what's your idea? Come to any conclusions about it yet?"

"There are still a couple of very vague points. I have a theory but I'd rather have it confirmed by learning a few more important things before I expound it. And how do you figure it, chief?"

"Personally, I'm inclined to follow the way you led, Dale. You called the turn on Stephen Boulter. That business with the knot was pretty conclusive to me. I'm pretty sure Boulter is the man. But even if we were sure who it was the difficult job is to prove it."

"When we're sure of the guilty one I think it's going to be very easy to prove it—so easy, in fact, that the culprit won't even deny the guilt."

"That's very optimistic, Dale."

"No. It's like that. The guilty one will be so surprised that you have discovered how the crime was committed that there will not even be a thought of denial."

At that moment there came from below the sound of a heavy crash as though some huge piece of furniture had been overturned.

When they burst into the living room it was still shrouded in darkness. Finally light flooded the room. Jardin stood at the switch. Mr. Sheen and Dr. Bailey were on the lounge. Robert Wayne stood in the center of the room. Sarah Boulter was clinging in terror to her husband in a far corner of the room. Gloria was not in sight.

A slight groan was heard and a movement behind the lounge. Robert Wayne sprang quickly to it and as Miss Sheen and Dr. Bailey stood up young Wayne frantically pulled the lounge aside. On the floor behind it lay Gloria, a gag in her mouth which she was weakly trying to loosen and stuck in the floor beside her was a knife.

"That's the same knife that killed Silas Wayne!" Capt. Blake spoke the words in a low tone to the district attorney.

STOCKS DRIFT OFF, TICKER DRAGS

Most of Active Traders Out of Town for Triple Holiday—Trading Slow

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP.)—The stock market told a tale of speculative vacillation today. Share prices drifted lower as trading dragged along at the slowest pace in years, brokers keeping a close watch until the closing gong put an end to the day.

Most of the brokers already had their rooms vacated. Messenger boys found almost no business in preliminary skirmishes in the narrow side streets off Wall and Broad streets served to keep buildings awake.

BEST NEEDED

The market appeared in need of buying support to test. The buying that developed in June appeared to have been completed. The market has had a thorough house cleaning and the overnight abandonment of a $1,000,000,000 speculative account left other loans during June at record but comparatively little pressure has not found business (or individuals) courageous enough to withdraw the active bidding up of issues and bears have had to cover short positions. The market has reached an impasse of uncertainty with immediate possibilities apparently exhausted.

Most of the daily market activity appeared to represent the lightening of trading commitments for the holiday and weekend activity to find traders will have no commission business to occupy themselves. After the first half rather sharply reflecting the lack of orders on specialists' books.

The day's brief rally had been favored the heels of announcement of a 10 per cent reduction of all salaries by Chrysler Corporation paralleled as a result with a reflection of policy which the cutback of business demands was practiced in Wall Street as reflected by the frankness and nerves of liquidation of conditions prevailing in many lines. Simms, Mayflower and Eureka Vacuum were added to the long list of smaller companies having omitted dividends.

LIST SAGS

Air Reduction broke about 10 points, a sharp drop for this issue. Allied Chemical lost as much and Gillette dropped 4 to a new low for the past 5 years. Shares losing 3 or more included American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, May Department Stores, Atchison, Eastman and Colorado Fuel. Such stocks as U. S. Steel, General Electric, Standard of N. J., American Telephone and American Can lost 1 to 2 or more. Call money renewed at 2½ per cent, but sank to 2 as funds were freely offered for employment over the week-end.

PREDICT LOWER GRAIN PRICES

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—Warning the American farmer not to think in terms of a quick return to the market, the Department of Agriculture today predicted that the world wheat price during the next seven years will average appreciably lower than it did during the last seven.

The warning was issued in connection with the 1930 wheat outlook report, which was released earlier than usual because Secretary Hyde and other officials might use it as a basis for statements in the new agricultural relief campaign to be launched at Hastings, Neb., next Monday.

Extensive adjustments in wheat acreage, including reductions in production in the great winter wheat belt, must be made if wheat growing is to be profitable, generally in the next six or seven years, the report said.

This is necessary, it explained, to meet intensified competition in world markets due to increased production in Russia and other countries without a corresponding increase in effective demand.

Offer Stock Rights On Western Public

Western Public Service Company directors have decided to offer stockholders of record July 9 the right to subscribe to additional stock at the rate of one new share for each five shares held at $15 per share.

Forbes

Warns Against Needless Cuts in Dividends

—By B. C. FORBES—

CHEERFUL dividend declarations during the first half of this year, though falling far below last year's, show a substantial increase over any earlier year.

An unpleasant feature during June was the large number of unfavorable dividend announcements.

THE WRITER urgently suggests to opulent corporations that they go out of their way at this time to treat their stockholders generously. An excellent example was set last month by the American Tobacco Company, the directors announced their intention of declaring an extra dividend of $4 and an increase in the regular rate from $8 to $10.

There are quite a number of companies carrying needlessly large surpluses and cash reserves. The smart thing for responsible boards of directors to do when pessimism prevails and when business is temporarily quiet is, not to cut their dividends immediately and drastically, but, rather, to strain a point to exercise liberality.

Conservatism is admirable. But the ideal time to be ultra-conservative is during boom periods. The ideal time to be courageous is when prices are scraping bottom, when labor is abundant and extra-efficient, when pessimism stalks the land. When influential corporations add to the gloom by cutting dividends which could reasonably be maintained, they gratuitously add to the depression and thus make bad worse.

Why pile up dividend reserves unless they are to be used when they can be distributed to the best advantage?

Now is the time for farseeing directors having control of bulged treasuries to exhibit business statesmanship by doing everything within their power to bring about better sentiment and better business.

JUNE LAST YEAR brought a record-breaking number of improved dividends, 233, a total not theretofore matched, and exceeded only twice since, in November and December. Last month's total was 139.

Against this there were no fewer than 45 reductions, 33 passed dividends and 19 payment deferred, a total of 97.

Were I to hazard a guess, it would be that coming months will bring, not more, but fewer reductions than last month.

THE SIX MONTHS' record of improved dividend payments by industrial, public utility and railway corporations, makes, all things considered, a creditable showing. Thus:

	Ind	P U	R.R.
Extra	279	10	13
Initial	177	14	6
Stock	115	20	5
Increased	87	16	4
Resumed	20	6	3
Back	14	2	2
Totals	692	62	33

Comparing these tables with the first half of the last year, it is seen that the railroads have made a better showing this year, that utility companies have about held their own, but that industrial and miscellaneous payments have fallen off severely. The 1929 comparisons follow:

	Ind.	P.U.	R.R
Initial	311	24	1
Extra	298	9	9
Stock	143	14	2
Increased	110	16	4
Resumed	24	0	1
Back	30	1	3
Totals	916	64	20

A SUMMARY of the improved dividend payments, month by month, since the end of 1924, is given in the following table:

	1930	1929	1928	1927	1926
Jan.	172	120	111	89	87
Feb.	117	126	98	81	72
Mar.	161	196	99	93	102
Apr.	93	159	70	60	60
May	105	166	78	68	54
June	139	233	163	137	98
Total
6 mos.	787	1.000	619	528	473
July	...	122	93	60	54
Aug.	...	121	108	63	57
Sept.	...	193	135	104	85
Oct.	...	179	133	83	19
Nov.	...	287	153	136	103
Dec.	...	391	227	205	184
Totals	...	2.293	1.468	1.179	1.025

IT IS to be hoped that stockholders will not be made to suffer unless no other course is feasible. It is manifestly the duty of every responsible business man to do everything possible to hasten the return of cheerfulness and prosperity.

Canada Expects Big Wheat Crop

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3.—Canada is looking forward to another bumper wheat crop in 1930.

Crop conditions for the Dominion as a whole have never looked better at this time of the year, it is disclosed in a bulletin just made public by the Department of Immigration and Colonization of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Wheat acreage this year for the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—where fully 90 per cent of the Dominion's wheat crop is grown—is approximately 24,000,000 acres, it is stated. Farmers throughout the Canadian West are generally optimistic and the bright outlook for the crop is said to be having a heartening effect in all the nine provinces.

Meanwhile, it is disclosed, huge shipments of wheat are being made from the terminal elevators at Port Arthur, Fort William and Montreal to fill orders from European buyers.

MOTOR EXPORTS OFF IN MAY

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Automotive exports shipped from the United States during May were valued at $51,619,047, against $45,264,634 in May, 1929. The Commerce Department reports there was a decline also compared with April shipments, valued at $37,443,661.

For the first five months of 1930 automotive exports were valued at $172,978,489, against $299,399,551 for the corresponding period of 1929, a decline of $126,421,062.

The reduction in shipments during May was in keeping with the slackening in manufacturing activities of the chief producers in this country and, while the number of units shipped during May was considerably lower than for May, 1929, the ratio of exports to production showed a slight increase.

General Electric Orders Decrease

NEW YORK, July 3.—Orders received by the General Electric Company for the second quarter amounted to $99,916,027, compared with $119,351,248 for the like period last year, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. Orders received for the six months ended June 30 totaled $190,313,758, compared with $220,716,456 for the corresponding period last year. As a result of the transfer of radio set and tube business, the figures for 1930 do not include orders for radio sets or tubes.

Street Loans Off $1,020,120,623 In June

NEW YORK, July 3.—The New York Stock Exchange reports collateral loans to members at the close of business June 30, 1930, amounted to $3,727,711,269, a decrease of $1,020,120,623 from May 29, when these loans amounted to $4,747,831,912. On June 29, 1929, loans to members totaled $7,071,221,275.

The high figure for stock exchange brokers' loans to date is $8,549,383,979, established September 30 last year, while the low of $2,767,400,514 was reported for May 31, 1926.

WALL STREET HEARS

That there has been considerable accumulation of bank stocks by important interests since they recently dropped into new low ground.

That Cooper Bessemer may set a new high record for earnings this year, exceeding the 1927 record of $4.96 a share.

That Mathieson Alkali's 1930 earnings will probably compare favorably with 1929.

That Liquid Carbonic will earn close to $7 a share in the fiscal year ending September 30.

That the June copper statistics, to be published within a week or two, will show a moderate reduction of stocks on hand.

Hudson Bay Mining Makes Good Strike

WINNIPEG, July 3.—Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company has opened a new line of copper ore carrying good gold values. This is the first high-grade ore to be encountered in the flin flon. It is located in the open cut. Extent of the body has not been determined, but exploration is underway.

German Bonds Sink Under Offering Price

NEW YORK, July 3.—Following dissolution of the syndicate for sale of the new German international 5½ per cent bonds, early transactions on the New York Stock Exchange were at 88⅛ and 88¼. This is the first time these bonds sold below their offering price of 90.

Mexican Eagle Oil Shows 1929 Profit

LONDON, July 3.—Mexican Eagle Oil Company, Ltd., reports for year ended December 31, 1929 trading profit of $18,868,609 Mexican currency, compared with $4,816,159 in 1928. Net profit after depreciation and legal reserves was $6,738,654 as against net loss of $318,399, after depreciation, in 1928.

I. C. C. Upholds Rate From McKees Rocks

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP.)—The complaint of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company on rates charged by the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad on carload shipments of petroleum jelly from McKees Rocks to Norfolk, Va., was dismissed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which held the rates were not unreasonable.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Brokerage Firms Advise Buying of High Grade Stocks Now.

Many of the market writers of brokerage houses say an opportune time to buy high grade common stocks as investments, particularly railroad issues, some of which now yield around 6 per cent to 7 per cent and a little more. The railroad stocks are not going to remain in the comfort forever. Any improvement in industrial conditions will be immediately reflected in the market for the rail stocks. Every ton of additional material produced by mill, furnace and factory means just so much more freight for the railroads and the latter can be said for products of the soil. The operating efficiency of the railroads is today better than it ever has been.

Depression in commodity prices and stocks seems to be prevalent all over the world. And a change for the better probably will be influenced by developments in the United States. If things turn for the better here, there should be an immediate response in Europe and other foreign countries. Business all over the world in recent years has contracted the habit of moving in sympathy with the course of business in the United States. And there is good reason.

Wall Street was an extremely quiet sector on the financial front yesterday. Brokerage boardrooms were well nigh deserted, except for the presence of a few habitual traders who make it a practice of seldom missing a day, however quiet. Customers' men and clerks alike were given over chiefly to wishing for the sound of the closing gong today, which will prove the signal of release for a three-day holiday to the majority of workers in the district.

Once more it appears as though the New York State treasury was among the biggest winners stock-marketwise during the past month. At any rate, the state collected a total of $2,680,726 in stock transfer taxes during the period. This was slightly under the total of $2,792,278 collected for the month of May, but still moderately larger than the amount of $2,679,735 realized from such taxes in June of last year. It brought the total of such collections for the fiscal year ended June 30 last to $38,861,414, the largest ever reported for a similar period, as against $33,718,495 in the previous corresponding year.

Utilization of steel mill output was maintained more rapidly than the placing of new business during June, indications are that the unfilled tonnage statement of the Steel Corporation, due late next week, will show a further contraction in the volume of forward business on its books. The corporation reported a drop in forward bookings for May of 284,993 tons and in June of last year, when ingots and mills were being maintained at an abnormally high seasonal rate, a drop of 47,287 tons was shown, followed by decreases of 166,733 tons and 429,966 tons respectively in July and August.

Leaders in the oil industry, it was learned were gathered in New York for informal conference last week as a result of conditions in the industry, particularly as it affects the gasoline end of the business. A few companies it is reported were not represented, but the gathering included the majority of the larger interests. The situation was discussed and its solution left to the individual judgment of those present. It is understood that several of the larger factors are now contemplating early curtailment of refinery runs, with one of the biggest preparing to cut refinery output by 10 to 15 per cent. At the same time it is said to be the belief of most leaders in the industry that crude oil prices will be stabilized around prevailing levels.

National Steel Plant Nears Completion

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NEW MILLS BEING BUILT by the Great Lakes Steel Corporation, subsidiary of the National Steel Corporation will be completed in August and will be ready for quantity production of steel in September or October.

This will give the company a period of several months in which to develop a market for its products before the automobile business starts in its spring period of activity.

The plant, which will cost about $25,000,000, is at Ecorse, Mich., which is an exceptionally favorable location for reaching the Detroit market. The automobile makers constitute one of the largest markets for steel products.

Now Shipping from Weirton

NATIONAL STEEL CORPORATION is now supplying steel to the automobile trade from its plant in the vicinity of Weirton, W. Va. The new plant will take over a portion of this business and will make the Weirton plants available for serving other markets. About $7,000,000 is being spent on improvements at Weirton.

Plans are being drawn for the next unit in the company's expansion program. A tract of 1,000 acres was recently bought on Lake Michigan near Chicago. After filling operations are completed this will be increased to 1,100 acres.

To Spend $50,000,000

THE CHICAGO PLANT will form the major portion of the company's expansion program. It will cost about $50,000,000. A long period of time is necessary to work out the engineering details of such a large project so that it is unlikely that actual construction work will be started before next year.

The development of plants in all three districts will involve total expenditures ranging from $72,000,000 to $82,000,000. The program will give National Steel modern, low cost plants in three important steel markets. The company is one of the pioneers in steel production on a large scale at Detroit.

Financing Expected

THE COMPLETION OF the construction work, which will practically double the organization's investment in physical properties as well as its capacity, will require a large amount of new financing. It is unlikely that this operation will be carried out until work is started on the Chicago plant.

The type of financing to be used will depend largely on market conditions at the time. It is quite likely, however, that the necessary cash will be raised by the sale of bonds as well as by the offering of rights to stockholders.

The company is in a favorable position for new financing since 2,149,687 shares of stock represent the principal capital liability. At the close of 1929 funded debt amounted to only $9,821,532 against a property account of $68,578,534 after depreciation and total assets of $120,828,758.

Earnings Satisfactory

IN SPITE OF THE DEPRESSION in business, earnings have been fairly well maintained this year. In the first four months of 1930 net profit was in excess of dividend requirements of $2 a share on the common stock for a full year. April was the best month since the formation of the present corporation last November by the merger of the Weirton Steel Company with the Great Lakes Steel Corporation and several subsidiaries of the M. A. Hanna Company. May and June showed declines from April but results this year have been exceptionally good in view of the fact that the Detroit plant is still unfinished.

The company is a fully integrated producer of steel products. It has ore reserves to last from 40 to 50 years. Its coal deposits are extensive and the organization has its own fleet of lake ships, river barges and tow boats for transporting materials.

Midland United Co. Acquires Property

The Midland United Company purchased at auction the larger part of the properties of the Union Traction Company of Indiana, which operates more than 400 miles of interurban railways.

Trust Company Gets Brotherhood Bank

CINCINNATI, July 3 — The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks National Bank, which was closed a week ago following a heavy run on the bank, has been acquired by the Central Trust Company, third largest bank here. It will hereafter be operated as a branch of the Central Trust.

Depositors of the Brotherhood bank will be fully protected and their accounts will have the same status as before the institution closed. The receivership has been lifted and acquisition authorized W. J. Pole, comptroller of currency.

Journal Says Bad Steel News Out

With the general rate of steel ingot production down to an average of about 60 per cent for the first half of July, the bad news in steel is probably all out, according to the American Metal Market.

Meeting Notices

PHILADELPHIA COMPANY
NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

The Stockholders of Philadelphia Company:

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of Philadelphia Company has called a special meeting of stockholders to be held at the principal office of the company, 435 Sixth avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on the fourth day of September, 1930, at 11 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time, for the purpose of holding an election of stockholders and voting upon the following matters:

1. Change and conversion of 40,000 shares of preferred $50 par value stock of the company to the par value of $10 per share, and 200,000 shares of preferred $10 par value stock of the par value of $10 per share.

2. Change and conversion of 975,000 shares of common stock of the company of the par value of $10 per share into 4,875,000 shares of common stock without nominal or par value having a stated capital of $48,750,000.

3. Changes in an increase of capital stock of the company from $75,000,000 to $112,000,000.

4. If the stockholders of the company at said special meeting shall give their consent to such increase of capital stock from $75,000,000 to $112,000,000, division of such increase into shares of capital stock as follows:

a. $50,000 shares of preferred stock entitled to rights and preferences over it to which existing stock is entitled, without nominal or par value having a stated capital of $25,000,000, of which 100,000 shares without nominal or par value having a stated capital of $10,000,000 shall be designated as cumulative preference stock and shall have such rights, privileges, limitations, preferences, prohibitions, restrictions, qualifications, powers and terms and conditions as shall be fixed and determined by the stockholders of the company at said special meeting.

b. 5,125,000 shares of common stock without nominal or par value having a stated capital of $51,250,000.

5. To fix the stated capital of the company.

6. Authorization of the Board of Directors of the company to issue said 5,125,000 shares of common stock without nominal or par value at such times or from time to time and for such considerations as said Board of Directors may fix and determine.

W. B. CARNEY,
Secretary.

Dividend Notices

PITTSBURGH STEEL COMPANY

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1, 1930.

The board of directors have this date declared a cash dividend of One Dollar and Seventy-five Cents ($1.75) per share on the preferred stock of the company, payable September 1, 1930, to stockholders of record at the close of business August 9, 1930.

C. E. BEDILION,
Treasurer.

To the PROFESSIONS:

IF you are a professional man—lawyer, engineer, physician, architect—your earning power depends on your own abilities. Your income has peaks and valleys. . . Is your problem one of stabilizing your income?

This plan may appeal to you:

Set up a Living Trust. Put aside a sum of money now which we will invest for you in sound, income-producing securities. Add to this fund from season to season when your professional income reaches the high levels.

Before long you will have a second income, independent of your profession, which will provide for your own later years and can be handed on to others either under the trust itself or your will.

The careful management of such Living Trusts is a part of our specialized work and we invite you to consult us.

Morgan Is Put in Dungeon For Two Months

CHAPTER XVI.

When a "fox"—an escaped convict is caught and brought back to prison, he is thrown into the dungeon for 60 black days and blue nights. Morgan knew this. He was reconciled to it. This time he went into the solitary hole with a resolute will—they could not break him.

He felt assured now of Anne's love; he believed there would be a way for him to get out of prison—some miraculous way—but a way—which would leave him clean and free to take up the life of an honest man.

Word spread through the prison like a forest fire that Morgan, the black sheep, was back. As they marched him through the cellhouse, stripped to the waist and barefooted on his way to the cooler, he saw again the old familiar places and faces. Butch's glance flashed a regretful welcome to him.

No one spoke to him. There was a barely perceptible nod of the head here and there. Then Morgan's dark eyes found out Kent. As he looked at him he saw Kent's eyes grow wide with fear, and Morgan smiled—a faint, sardonic smile. He would have a lot to tell Kent—later. That would be his revenge!

Philosophical
Thinks Everything Happened for the Best

But in his heart Morgan didn't hate Ken. After they had thrown him into his dark cell where he would spend many long, lonesome hours, he began to reflect on the vicissitudes of life. As a chance encounter sometimes changes the entire course of the span of a man, so had this undestined circumstance in which Kent planted the knife on him changed the entire existence of Morgan.

He traced back each factor in the hazard scheme; the 30 days in the cooler . . . the hatred in his heart for Kent, which had caused him to take the desperate break at escape . . . the meeting with Anne Marlowe . . . the final impulsive confession of their mutual love . . . the warning by Ruby—the arrest from a chance source—for no self-respecting crooks would work with cops.

"Everything must have a purpose," mused Morgan, philosophically. "Things look gloomy now. Back in prison now, I can clear myself forever. Had I married Anne, I would have always lived in deadly horror that some day I would be turned up—a fox. It would have been tougher, knowing how it would wreck her."

Happy Dreams
Thinks of Happiness With Anne as Wife

But he began to worry about her now. He could communicate with her in no way. Ruby would no doubt explain to her that he had been thrown into the horror-chamber as soon as they got him back to prison—or she would come to ask for him and find out of her own accord.

Or—would she come! Had she not had enough heart-hurt and humiliation already with outcast convicts? Possibly she would fear Morgan out of her life forever. Possibly she would be repelled against her love for him—he knew she loved him. But she was not born or built to throw herself away on a jailbird.

No, Morgan believed her—although in a dungeon, a disgrace even among convicts, he had faith that she would love him and he would yet justify that love. She had wired "Nothing matters."

Strange, Morgan constantly dreamt of his future happiness. Incongruous as it was, he could picture their little home . . . a cottage bathed in sunlight . . . Anne in her clean, crisp house dress, busy about the kitchen . . . he somehow pictured her making coffee and looking at him with smiling inquisitiveness as she said, "It's one lump, Mr. Everett?" . . . and they both laughed . . . Mr. Everett!

Yes, the house was bathed in sunlight, eternal sunlight . . . and then came the day of days and the little spare room in the house, the one with the fairies and the elephants and the bears and the giants painted on the walls, would echo . . .

Hopes Rise
Visions of Anne Make Days Brighter

They wouldn't need much money. Just enough for the staple things of life. It would come in regularly and he would work hard. He must learn the value of money and she must keep a budget . . . like she did in the bookshop. Morgan's black cell became illuminated with the aurora of his future happiness. Nothing could discourage him henceforth. He only waited until he could communicate with Anne in some way—assure her of his love and receive her answer that she would wait for him!

Then a melancholy mood came over him. What right had he to ask this adorable, sensible, desirable woman to wait for him, to spend the better part of her life waiting until he, a number, had finished his punitive prison term? Think of the opprobrium she must bear—the girl of a con! The smirk of Sergt. Conlin when he saw her on her way to her little bookstore, and when he asked, significantly:

"Well, Miss Marlowe, how are you today?"

"How does it feel to wait for your convict lover to finish his term?"

And in her own family circle—what she would have to bear!

Yet out of this miasma of forlorn thoughts always arose the sweet, smiling face of Anne. Her lips seemed to move in the one phrase:

"COURAGE! PATIENCE! FAITH!"

She, herself, was the quintessence of courage. Had she not borne many of these things before—for Kent, a man she really could not love?

Yes, Morgan could see her now, smiling bravely, confidently. He had lived in the other half of the world—among the racketeers, the killers, the crooks—but there he had learned to judge people for their true worth, to read their concealed pages. He could not be mistaken in Anne! And how he wanted to tell her that she need never fear that she could be mistaken in him! So the days and nights went on and each hour Morgan's hope rose. Before, he had nothing worthwhile to wish for—now as each minute passed in the dungeon he could see growing brighter and brighter at the end of the time the culmination of it all.

Then, one day, they came down and opened the door and found Morgan on his feet and able to walk out unaided. It is a wonderful thing, the effect of mind and spirit over body. Some have made a religion of it!

When they had allowed him to shave and clean up, he was taken before the warden. As he stood before the prison head, Morgan looked steadily into the other's eyes as he received his customary lecture. His face was pale and drawn, and there were deep shadows beneath his eyes, denoting the hardship he had outgamed.

"You'll find it tougher here than ever, Morgan," said the warden. "The state has closed the jute mill and the men have nothing to do—no good, hard work to occupy them. You know what idleness does—I want you to watch your step."

"Yes, sir," rejoined Morgan with a determination which caused Wallace, the captain of the yard, who stood beside him, to sneer. The warden gave Wallace a quick glance of disapproval.

"Morgan," the warden was sympathetic now, "I have always believed there was good in you. You were a fine prisoner before—before that knife was found on you—"

"But, sir—"

"Never mind—that is past. I want you to do the proper thing now. Set a good example for the others. You have a personality, a certain influence. It will pay you—that's all."

As Wallace led him out, he sneered:

"The warden is too soft—you got a bad record, Morgan. We won't take a thing off you. Toe the chalkline, or you'll get all the grief there is inside o' here."

"Yes, sir," said Morgan courteously. Then he added: "Taking grief is nothin', Wallace. Makin' it is what hurts. I'll be such a model prisoner, it'll get on your nerves!"

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Cheese

"The Myrtle" is not an ultra-fashionable eating place—not one of those places where they have "Poisson petite, sauce tartare," and charge you two fifty for it.

At The Myrtle they serve "Smelts with tartar sauce, 60 cents."

You get the idea: plenty of really fine food at reasonable prices. A good orchestra and near beer that isn't very far from the real goods, if you get what I mean.

It is a popular luncheon place. Men as well as women patronize the place. Shoppers drop in for real food, restful music—and the nice beer.

Day after day Wilbur Watkins could be found at a corner table at the lunch hour. Wilbur wasn't an ordinary "gas man," not a meter reader. He was a skilled mechanic and his position with the gas company was that of "maintenance man." If the new-fangled gas appliance didn't function, it was up to the company to send Wilbur out to see that it did function. Wilbur was the fair-haired lad who could do it.

Quite frequently, of late, the same man had occupied the opposite seat at this small corner table. They had a "nodding acquaintance." They didn't know each other's names and, after the manner of the true cosmopolitan, had no desire to do so.

Sometimes it was a brief word about the weather or the market, or the standing of the Giants. Just a little chatter as they ate.

There was generally one subject that was brought up for a moment every noon. It was about the idle chatter of women.

There was always sure to be, near their table, tables of women shoppers, higher grade women secretaries and the like.

"My gawd," Wilbur muttered one day, "how do them dames get time to feed their faces? Their chains are waggin' constant."

Nonsense

"Idle chatter, feller; just idle chatter," said the other man, "they live on it—gossip—tale-bearing—nonsense, but all women are like that."

"Uh, huh. I've noticed it. Trouble is they ain't got anything much to do—most of 'em. You never see men gabbing like that—a bunch of guys will talk sensible things, like sports, or the market, or else swap some nifty new stories, but you never see no men waggin' their chins constant with this here idle chatter stuff."

"Absolutely not," the other man agreed.

One rather warm, languid-feeling day Wilbur and his nodding acquaintance had enjoyed one of The Myrtle's choice blue-plate specials—a chop, a tiny sausage, a crisp slice of bacon, a square of cutlet and a round meat ball, with the usual vegetables.

It was rather too hearty for the weather, but the sort of a dish men like. They sat back and lighted cigarets.

Next to their table was one seating four—and four women were in the chairs.

The air was full of their chatter. One could make out, "Did you read—she caught him—marked down to—he calls on the widow—my boy friend—they say he caught her—look like real pearls—"

And so on and on, like a brook, seemingly, forever.

"Get an ear full of that," said the man.

"Women are like that."

"Gawd, watch 'em gulp and talk!"

"Uh huh, idle chatter, waste time—tell each other's secrets, never see men chattering away like that."

"Never."

"I tell you," Wilbur Watkins went on, "it's because we spoil our women—give 'em too much idleness. I often wonder what women do with their spare time, left alone in their apartments—or supposedly alone—get me?"

"Oh, I don't know, my wife keeps busy cleaning up the place, and doing odd jobs around, she's always busy."

"Married, huh?" Wilbur asked.

"Oh yes, only life to live."

"Well I could tell you—" Wilbur lighted another smoke. He leaned forward. "Fact is, I'm a maintenance man, have to go into all sorts of apartments fixing up gas appliances, I see plenty."

Experiences

"Yeah?" said the man, only half listening. He was trying to get the eye of a trim, little black-haired woman at the next table.

"You bet it's 'yeah,' Mister," Wilbur went on. "You knew there ain't two hours work a day in the average apartment home."

"Oh yes there is, the women entertain a lot—they have to prepare for bridge lunches or night parties at home, and fix up their clothes and clean up next day after entertaining—"

The man paused to smile and lift an eyebrow unquiringly at the black-haired little lady, who gave him a quick nod, meaning that she would see him outside.

"Entertaining is right, Mister," said Wilbur, "and how!"

"Well, how?"

"I get well acquainted in lots of places, have to go back two or three times. Quite often the woman is out early and I have to get the janitor or superintendent to let me in with a master key. He stands over me as if he was afraid I'd clean out the place, but that ain't what I'm getting at—many and many a time a janitor has let me in after I've rung the bell for ten minutes steady, and what ho!"

Wilbur winked solemnly.

"What do you mean, what ho?"

The dame would be there all the time—entertainin' her gentleman friend. Say, mostly the dames have got more nerve than the men. I've seen 'em rush past us and out and I've heard more excuses than you would guess. Lots of time I've heard red-faced dames choke a little and mention to the janitor that her brother just came on unexpectedly from Chicago."

"That's a hot one," Wilbur's listener agreed.

How many married women we caught that way would surprise you. Lots of times the dame answers the bell, lets me in and then I hear her whisperin' with some guy in th' next room. Dames don't whisper to their husbands and act that way.

Sure, talkies all kinds of women to make a world, you'll find wives like that now and then."

"Now and then?" Wilbur looked hurt. "Man, a big majority of 'em are like that, have their gentlemen friends come after the old bread-winner has gone. I get a great kick watching them get scared pink if a janitor happens to let me in with a key. You see the dame hears the key in the lock—now that would only be hubby with a key—sweet papa, what to do? Many a time they near throw fits."

Continues to Talk

The man wanted the talk to continue because the cute little woman with black eyes at the next table was only half way through her luncheon and by this time her eyes had assured him that she would see him later.

What did her gentleman friend do?

"He had just dashed out with his hat, stick, gloves and top coat in his hands. He'd drop one thing or another and pick it up. He didn't wait for the elevator, but started down the stairs—and this was eight floors up."

"Eight, huh?" The man was half listening, again, and watching the willing little black-eyes next table.

"Yup, eight floors up. Well, it was like this. I had to go back to this place to fix up the refrigerating plant, to make sure it was running O. K. after I had fixed it the day before. I jabbed that bell plenty, but not a yip. Just then I saw the janitor. He recognized me. I asked him to let me in and he came along and opened the door with that master key of his."

Wilbur chuckled.

"Scandal, eh?" asked the man.

"They was standin' with arms about each other, he was givin' her one of them movie clinch kisses. They heard the door open and the man turned so white I thought he'd fade away. 'Gas maintenance man,' I said, as cheerful as I could. Honest, they were speechless, just staring at me. Finally the man makes a grab for his things and leaves. I was expecting to hear the usual about a visiting brother or cousin, but not a sound out of this cute little married dame.

"Well, sir, after this lover had beat it the little woman all of a sudden gave a big flop—bingo!"

"Aw, lots of women faint."

"Well, this cute little blonde did a real flop, she lay there like she was dead. 'Gee,' I said to th' janitor, 'look at th' blood, wonder did she bust her head and croak herself?' We took a look—it was her elbow, it had struck the foot of a brass floor lamp and a big cut—"

"Elbow?" the man asked, sharply.

"Yup, deep cut, she—"

"Which elbow?"

Becomes Interested

"The—er—right. We lifted her up and—"

"When was this?"

"It was—le's see, this is Friday—it was Tuesday, this week and—"

"Where? What was the name?"

"Nix, nix friend. We maintenance men are wise guys, we tell no secrets, we spill no chatter—do you think we are like women who just spill a lot of idle chatter? This is a secret, can't give names—might lead to blackmail."

"Er—sure—sure—" the man agreed. "I wasn't interested in the name—I suppose it was in the Excellett apartments?"

The man had suddenly departed. The black-eyed woman at the next table seemed surprised and angry.

Wilbur wondered what had made his luncheon acquaintance jump out like that. When the waitress came around and Wilbur tipped her, she seemed surprised that the other man was gone and had left no tip.

"That's funny, was he taken sick?" she asked Wilbur.

"No, I guess he just remembered an engagement or something. We was just talkin' about how the women sit here for hours and hours spilling idle chatter."

"It's the first time Mr. Throckman ever forgot to leave a tip," said the waitress.

"His name Throckman?" Wilbur asked in sudden surprise.

"Oh, yes, he often comes here nights with his wife, a little blonde woman, awfully sweet—they live in the Excellett apartments."

Wilbur Watson choked and lay down a 50-cent tip.

"Well, I'm a so-and-so," he muttered, as he got up and groped on the rack for his hat.

SMART SAYINGS OF KIDDIES

Editor's Note.—When baby needs a new pair of shoe, let baby frankly understand that many publications pay for bright sayings from the little ones. In this way the youngsters can, if they will, be self-supporting.

This week's bright saying prize goes to little Viola de Doudet (above), whose papa took her to the zoo, where she was permitted to purchase a small sized paper container filled with goobers, to feed the various vertebrates. Coming to the enclosure in which the quadrupeds were quartered, she stopped before a specimen known variously to those familiar with ruminant mammalia as the camelopard, (Giraffa giraffa), or giraffe. Extracting a peanut, she fed it to the giraffe, at the same time exclaiming, "My! A little bit goeth a longeth way, doeth it not?" Of course everybody howled, particularly the animals, as it was nearly feeding time.

Celebrate the Fourth, But Celebrate Safely

As the United States grows older, the wisdom of our forefathers in severing the tie that bound us to the Old World and setting up an independent nation becomes more and more apparent.

The 154th anniversary of Independence Day will find the country with many reasons for rejoicing in its independence, many causes for honoring the patriots that conferred on us the inestimable boon of liberty.

The Fourth of July continues a day for celebration. It should be celebrated this year with undiminished ardor.

But it is to be hoped it will be celebrated more sensibly than it has often been in the past. Prudent parents will see that their children do not play with fireworks. Nineteen persons died of tetanus in Pennsylvania last July, the result of being injured by explosives. Automobile accidents are another holiday peril to be guarded against.

Celebrate safely.

A Statesman Is Wanted To Fill Porter's Place

The late Congressman Stephen G. Porter was one of the most distinguished members of the House of Representatives. A man of broad outlook, with nothing petty in his makeup, he was a statesman in the best sense of the word. Mr. Porter was respected by his colleagues, and conferred honor not only on his district, not only on Pittsburgh, but on the nation. Will his successor fill the place worthily?

The answer depends to a large extent on the Republican organization here, and more particularly on the leading men in the organization—such men, for example, as County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Mayor Charles H. Kline, State Senator James J. Coyne, Dr. Fred H. Frederick, president of the Civil Service Commission, and the outstanding ward chairmen.

The Republican nominee for national representative in the Thirty-second Congressional District, to succeed Mr. Porter, will be chosen at a caucus of the county committeemen and committeewomen of the district. Unless a factional fight develops a few of the leaders probably will get together in advance of the meeting, agree on a candidate and virtually dictate the nomination to the assembly. And the nominee is virtually certain to be elected.

It is earnestly to be desired that the men who will control this important choice will have enough civic pride, enough regard for the welfare of the district and of the nation, enough respect for Mr. Porter's memory, to name a good man or woman—one of statesmanlike qualities, and not a mere peanut politician.

If they cannot find a candidate of big enough caliber among the politicians of the district, let them go outside of politics in their search for the nominee. The choice should not be made hastily.

Shutting Off City Water Threat to Delinquents

Roy D. Schooley, city treasurer, will make an attempt to collect $1,500,000 delinquent water taxes. That, of course, is part of his duty. He also will put into effect a new regulation, providing for shutting off water if bills are not paid promptly.

Mr. Schooley points out that the charge for water is not really a tax comparable to tax on property, but is the fee for a commodity which the people have received prior to being billed. He also comments that delinquents put a burden on taxpayers that is not fair and that if all paid their bills promptly property taxation might be one-half to one mill less.

This is a step that will be approved by taxpayers. A city is entitled to its income and should get it. The movement to give the city what is coming to it could well extend in other directions, too. It should get the service represented in its payroll outlay or reduce the payroll in ratio to service rendered.

Diamonds for Boys

Where Can Youngsters Play Baseball?

Boys have rather a tough time of it in Pittsburgh. Because of our hills there are not nearly so many places for playing baseball as in flat cities like Cleveland and St. Louis. And when the youngsters play in unauthorized places in the parks they get into trouble.

A game in one of the North Side parks was broken up by a park supervisor last week. As the players were dispersing the supervisor struck a 16-year-old lad on the head with a bat and killed him—in self-defense, he says. The incident has led to Council's passing a resolution forbidding ball playing in several of the smaller parks.

Baseball is out of place, of course, in restricted areas, where there is danger that the ball will strike a passerby or break a window. At the same time there should be recognition of the right of healthy, growing boys to be provided with places where they may engage in vigorous sports, and particularly our national game.

The Recreation Bureau has supervision over six fields on the North Side where baseball may be played, but on two of them only soft balls are permitted, and on the others permits are granted only to "senior teams," composed of older young men and belonging to regularly organized leagues.

Of course, there are other baseball fields on the North Side, but the lack of provision for the younger boys on the Recreation Bureau's diamonds suggests they have a just complaint.

Rich Man, Poor Man, Beggar Man,

Drawn by Nelson Harding

What do these "outsiders" think
Of the dry enforcement swell
Who, supplied with ample cash,
Stalks into the smart hotel?

Poor man, and you, beggar man,
Don't stand frowning, just keep moving,
Or in trouble with the law
You may be for disapproving.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The New Fourth

Tomorrow, we are in a quandary even if you can spell it right.

In the old days we celebrated the birth of independence in all its manifestations and varied glories.

"Bugs" Baer

Tomorrow, we do not know whether to celebrate the hatching of liberty or the closing of the stock exchange.

With Patrick Henry we must agree that experience is the lamp that guides our feet if you don't try to drink the oil therein.

Which is what we have been trying to do. But this isn't a bad merger of states. No matter how you take it. True, the army of the unemployed are mostly Democratic office seekers. But what of it?

Dwight Morrow has shown the way for all good men to come to the aid of the nearest party, even without an invitation. Dwight ran for Senate on the wet platform and tagged all the bases en route.

The stock exchange slump is about over because nobody can get very far on cigaret coupons. The farmers have been relieved, including their watches and chains.

We have the great Lindbergh who flies an ironing board across oceans. And also Byrd who discovers all the poles except those excluded by the quota.

Henry Ford has bought a three-legged stove and we hope he doesn't try to apply that idea to flivvers. Mr. Hoover will issue another prosperity bulletin for light, summer reading.

The two Rockefellers are spending billions on public improvements in back of Standard Oil gasoline billboards.

Andy Mellon is the watchdog of the Treasury and that means while money may be scarcer it will be much greener. We can hitch up the old flivver tomorrow and pull up the shrubbery and plants in the farmers' gardens.

If we get a blow-out there is good old Thomas Edison to wave a sprig of golden rod over it like a fairy godmother. America has the greatest men and the most illustrious leaders of any nation on earth.

If we start chewing our cud too fast and mooing like a contented cow we can depend on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler to give us a scolding that would raise the lid off an iron kettle.

We used to celebrate the Fourth with firecrackers and Roman candles and never felt patriotic if we had any eyebrows the morning of the fifth.

But, now we are more sensible and are satisfied to count our blessings while looking for that short circuit in the ignition.

UNDEFEATED KANCHANJANGA

By Archibald Henderson

The last two years have witnessed three attempts to climb the great elevation of massive mountain eminence of the Himalayas, Kanchanjanga. The first attempt was the work of an American, E. Farmer, in 1929. It was so ill-considered, and carried out in such a fool-hardy manner, that it was inevitably doomed to failure. Owing to adverse conditions, the porters in Farmer's "banderbast" refused to go further up the Yalung Glacier. The last seen of Farmer was a solitary and tragic figure sturdily climbing toward the Talung Saddle, which is 22,000 feet high.

A vigorous and well considered effort, based on scientific lines, was made last year by a group of skilled Bavarians, long habituated to mountain climbing. The leader of the party was Dr. Baues, and a tower of strength, during this notable attempt, was E. O. Shebbeare, who had proved himself a most efficient officer on the last Everest expedition.

This party established its first base camp on the Zemu Glacier, which lies on the eastern side of Kanchanjanga. The difficulties were numerous and extreme; but after tireless efforts they finally attained an altitude of 24,600 feet.

They were within striking distance of the summit and the prospects of success were excellent. But just at this juncture a terrific storm began to rage, precipitating six feet of snow, and destroyed their hopes. They were forced to abandon the attempt, just when success appeared probable, if not actually within their grasp.

During the present year a notable expedition has been led by Guenther O. Dyhrenfurth, professor of geology at the University of Zurich. He was accompanied by his wife, a famous tennis player. Other members of the party were H. Hoerlen and E. Schneider, unexcelled as individual mountain climbers; Dr. H. Richter, surgeon of the party; U. Wieland, who had made many notable ascents of lofty mountains in the United States; M. Kurz, famous authority on winter mountaineering; H. Duvanel, sportsman and skirunner, who went along especially as cinematograph expert; E. Gasparri, expert rock climber, and F. S. Smythe, a noted British Alpine climber.

This admirably equipped expedition encountered difficulties almost from the start. There were snowstorms, of almost blizzard character, to be weathered. Many of the Nepalese natives deserted at Jongri. A notable achievement was the double march over the Kang Pass, 17,000 feet high. The party's second camp was established at an altitude of 22,000 feet.

Directly above this camp is the towering Kanchanjanga glacier. Concerning the hardships, steps had to be cut in hard ice at an angle of more than 60 degrees! A little exertion brings on temporary exhaustion and labored gasping for breath.

On May 5, following the desertion of their porters, the party at Camp 2 were left with provisions for only one week. The attempt was made to scale Kanchanjanga from the Nepalese side, but it ended in definite failure. On May 17 Prof. Dyhrenfurth attempted to scale the beautiful Ramthang peak, 23,000 feet high. The following day Schneider and Smythe performed the feat of skiing to an altitude of 21,000 feet. The summit of the Ramthang was reached. This was the high mark, it is believed, of this latest expedition.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

What are the rights of a wife? Do those rights continue after the love, which made her a wife, has passed? Has a man a right to his freedom when his heart has turned from his wife? Should the wife then give him a quit claim deed, wish him God speed and let him go to the other woman? Or should she hold him bound, whether he likes it or not?

Strange questions—but they are abroad these days. And Mrs. L. H. L. is all for holding 'em regardless.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Recently you quoted the case of a husband who no longer loved his wife and wished to marry another woman. The wife refused to give him a divorce. She said he had promised to stay with her 'until death did them part,' and she was going to hold him to that promise, since she loved him even if he didn't love her. You asked for comments. Here are mine:

Marriage is not exclusively a love relation. It has a civic and social status. And it is a financial partnership. Why should a woman who has worked to establish a definite place in life for herself abandon that place to satisfy some other person's romantic demands? Why glorify a man who holds on to his ideals and rights and responsibilities in the face of opposition and temptation, and denounce the woman who does the same thing?

MRS. L. H. L.

"Holding on to ideals, rights and responsibilities" is one thing, sister. Holding on to a rebellious spirit is quite another.

You have a right to demand your equity in the joint property. That is law and good business. You may also, if such be your religion, refuse to acknowledge the fact of divorce in your secret heart and insist upon considering yourself a wife, even though your husband has gone to another. But I can't see where you have any moral right to hold a man bound if that man has ceased to love you and desires his freedom.

Husbands are not domestic goods and chattels—even though some of 'em bear all the earmarks. They are human beings with an "inalienable right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness." A man may be an ingrate and a fool if he seeks his happiness outside his home, but it cannot be held against him as a crime. For love cannot be forced. Like the wind, it bloweth where it listeth. And what joy is there in holding a heart from which love has fled?

Indeed, it seems as indecent to me to hold a person in unwilling wedlock as to force him into it. But, unfortunately, our laws do not agree. Although slavery was abolished 60 years ago, it is still possible for a wife to hold a man in hateful bondage for life.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Mary and Patricia were fighting, like little sisters do, I reckon. Like their mother never did when she was a little girl, you know.

So their mother come along and says, "Girls, girls! Can't you have a little difference of opinion without tearing each other to pieces about it?"

"But this ain't no difference of opinion!" Mary says.

"How come it ain't?" says Mother.

"Well, Patricia thinks I ain't going to let her use the doll carriage, and I think just exactly the same!"

Text for Today

Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.—I Samuel xvi:7.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Yourself

How many know you,
Yourself, I mean,
That inner self which is Rarely seen?
To whom have you shown
That hope you hold
So near to your heart,
More dear than gold?
With whom have you shared
The glimpse you caught
Of a better life
In your higher thought?
How many know you
And really learn
Of the truth and beauty
For which you yearn?
Your brothers falter
Sometimes, and fall;
But you might help.
Would you lift the veil.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The strength, endurance and resistance to disease of the mule are well known; the sterile hybrid of a radish and a cabbage grows into a rampant bush 10 feet in height. But here also these are exceptions, and a cross may not exceed its parents as conspicuously as is expected.

A curious and, at first sight, rather lawless mass of facts! But this mystery of inbreeding and outbreeding is one of those compartments of biology which have been swept and cleaned and put in order by geneticists in the last 30 years. Today the rationale of the subject is plain enough.

H. G. Wells

Consider a family of brother and sister animals or plants, whose stock shows no inbreeding for several generations back. They will have two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents.

If, on the other hand, one of the grandparental couples had been a brother-and-sister mating, the family will only have six great-grandparents, or if their father and mother had been brother and sister, they would only have had four.

Thus, manifestly enough, inbreeding diminishes the number of ancestors contributing to a race—the number of different strands of germ-plasm that tangle and blend within it. And indeed it is found in practice that a strain which has been long inbred is more homogeneous, less variable than one which is cross-bred and mixed.

To make the idea clearer, suppose that we start with a mixed stock (let us say, for simplicity, of pink four-o'clocks) and leave them alone to interbreed without any form of control.

Pinks, whites and reds will appear and mate; the genes will mix and separate and mix again. And nothing very much will happen. But suppose that we force the plants to fertilize themselves—the extremest form of inbreeding.

The pure reds will produce pure reds and the whites whites, but the pinks will produce reds, whites and pinks.

So that the proportion of pinks will diminish generation after generation. In a word, such an inbred stock tends to sort itself out into a number of races, each pure-breeding and homogeneous.

Now we noted that genes may be dominant or recessive, and that a recessive gene may be carried hidden in a race mastered by its dominant companion, and may continue so for generations without showing itself. This is true, for example, of albinism in rabbits, of hereditary deaf-muteness in man.

The effect of inbreeding on a stock will be to unearth these hidden recessives. They will be brought together in pairs, freed of their dominant neighbors, and so made to reveal themselves. In rabbits, if there is albinism in the strain, it will appear; in the human example deaf mutes will turn up.

And the opposite is also true; cross-breeding will conceal the recessives by increasing the chance of their being submerged by dominants.

Clearly the relative merits of inbreeding and outbreeding will depend simply on the recessives that the strain in question is carrying. If they are harmful recessives, inbreeding will be bad and outbreeding good; if they are desirable recessives, the reverse will be true.

In the case of the human stock tainted with a concealed hereditary defect, any form of inbreeding is to be avoided; brother and sister marriage would be very dangerous, indeed, and even cousin marriages would be running a considerable risk.

Consorts should be chosen from quite unrelated families. But in the albino-carrying rabbits the reverse might be the case; if their breeder wanted albinos he should inbreed them, and the closer the better.

If it be true (and, as a matter of fact, it is) that this idea of the concealment or exposure of recessive genes is enough to explain the results of crossing and inbreeding, we must find in it an explanation of the fact that in the great majority of cases close inbreeding is quite obviously bad and crossing is quite obviously invigorating.

But to do this we must anticipate the conclusion of a later chapter.

A species is not a static thing but an evolving thing. It is constantly being polished and improved by its surroundings, by a selecting action of the environment which favors some variations and strikes out others.

(To Be Continued Saturday).

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: All Paris has gone modernistic with a bang. Every shop of consequence expresses the new art. New buildings of stone along the Champs Elysees are chiseled in the modern manner. That famed four block shopping area—the Rue de la Paix—is almost a solid sharp edged glitter of silver and glass.

Thus for the first time in a century, Paris presents a physical change. "It never changes" had become axiomatic but you should see the old town now. Nothing has escaped the modernistic sweep. I picked up a pen in my hotel room this morning and it was beveled in the mode. I can't tell a hat rack from a chair.

In the studio attics of Montmartre there are derisive chuckles. For out of the welter of Futurism, Cubism and such that flowered in such artistic idiocies as "Nude Descending the Stairs" has come a sweeping innovation in furniture and decorations that bespeaks permanence.

Against my wishes I was dragged away from my sidewalk cafe sitting this morning to see a modernistic exhibit at the Grand Palace. I had already become a convert but the display more than ever convinced me that, like the auto, modernism has come to stay. It is beautiful. It is practical.

Even the most devout enthusiasts see the finish of period furniture and all other schemes of decoration that have attracted their followings during the past decade. It is the devastating simplicity of French modernism that leaves its indelible stamp.

The most beautiful and useful desk—and I'll own it if I have to hawk nauty postcards to raise the money—consisted of three sheets of exquisitely cut plate glass and a group of short silver posets. There are no drawers but it is the ideal escritoire or I'm as fat-headed as usual.

At the exhibit was a Lalique glass table with glass legs that whooped up the appetite at a mere glance. There were beds and chairs of entire satin that lured with their exquisite plainness. For the first time in years of hotel living I have an insatiable desire to go in for housekeeping.

It is possible I may yet get inside the Louvre which I have never visited. So far this trip my prowling has been mainly artistic. After the modernistic exhibit we enjoyed that triumph of Gothic architecture — Sainte-Chapelle. The chapel in the jeweled radiance of a summer day is breath taking. On the 1,100 separate panels that form the windows, the Bible is represented, almost chapter by chapter, from Creation to the Apocalypse.

I tried to telephone Ray Long at the Crillon at noon today. It required 36 minutes by the wrist watch to get that hotel. At the end of another period during which I played tit-tat-toe with myself for three closely penciled pages I was told Mr. Long—the Lebanon, Ind., upstart — was lunching with General Pershing and could not be disturbed.

Paris clings to its historic past with its "faubourgs." A street may be a "rue" and then suddenly become a "rue du Faubourg." Faubourg means suburb and indicates the point where a street suddenly passes the walls of the city into fields beyond. The fields and walls have vanished but the name remains.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why worry so much about what others may think of you if you know that your principles are right?

Very likely you can bring to mind many opportunities by which you might be benefited, but you fail to accept because of what someone might think—or say.

You should be master of your own affairs and control your own life.

You know men who have advanced to high positions who subjected themselves to ridicule in order to carry out their plans.

Perhaps they accepted jobs that you would not have taken, and they worked much harder than you would be willing to work.

Apparently they were deaf to deprecatory remarks made about them.

They had a goal and plugged for it.

Your superintendent or employer may have been a man whom you knew when he filled a menial position you would not have taken.

Have you not thought too much of the dignity of your position or the associations that you consider desirable when you have looked for work?

You want to wear good clothes and present an appearance of prosperity that is not consistent with facts and so you are at a standstill—isn't that it?
